1 Killed, 3 Hurt In Shelby Train Wreck

TRAINMAN DIES AS 2 ENGINES LEAVE RAILS

Newark Conductor on B. & O. Pulled From Wreckage 4 Hours After Crash.

EIGHT CARS DERAILED

Train Piles Into String of Cars Left For Return Pull to Shelby Yards.

One trainman was killed and three others seriously injured early today when two locomotives and eight freight cars were derailed in a freak railroad accident on the Baltimore and Ohio single-track stretch between Shelby and Willard.

Carl Backus, of Newark, a conductor, was fatally injured when he was crushed between a locomotive and tender which jackknifed. Rescue crews worked for more than four hours before they were able to extricate his body.

Seriously injured were three other crew members, also of Newark. Kenneth Holmes, 29, and Harry Milligan, 46, suffered head injuries, and Calvert Hines, 43, sustained leg injuries and bruises. They were taken to the Shelby Memorial hospital, where their condition was described as "fair."

Railroad representatives said the accident occurred when one freight train rammed a string of freight cars standing on the track at a spot about six miles north of Shelby and two miles south of Plymouth. Complete details were lacking, however, and the company representatives withheld any formal statement on cause of the crash pending completion of their investigation.

However, trainmen at the scene said the crash occurred in this fashion:

A freight train en route from Willard to Shelby was having difficulty due to the steep grade and numerous curves, and for that reason the crew decided to split the train in half, leaving part of the cars standing for later pick-up. The first part then was drawn to Shelby and uncoupled.

The locomotive was joined to the front of a second train, en route from Shelby to Willard, and

LONG TO RUN

Former Sheriff Makes It 3-Way Race for Commissioner.

At least a three-way race for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner was assured today when E. P. Long, former Richland county sheriff, obtained his petitions at the board of election headquarters.

Commissioner C. L. Mitchell and Fred Bricker, former election board member, have already started circulating petitions for the party nomination. Only one commissioner post will be voted on next fall. The nominee will be chosen in August.

While the Democrats have three prominent party men in the race, no one has announced on the Republican ticket. Candidates do not have to file their petitions until June 12.

Wreck Scene at Fatal Train Crash Between Shelby and Willard

Here are four views taken by The News-Journal photographer at the scene of today's early-morning train crash on the Baltimore and Ohio track between Shelby and Willard. Upper left shows how the two locomotives which were coupled together at the head of one train, appeared after they crashed into a string of freight cars standing on the track two miles from Plymouth. Upper right is a general view of the crash scene, and shows one of the eight derailed freight cars which was overturned. Lower left shows a power crane lifting another freight car, this one filled with a heavy load of steel. Lower right shows part of the crowd of spectators that milled around the scene today watching the work crews clear away the wreckage.

PROBE COST OF MEALS AT JAIL

Commissioners Seek to Find If Present 23-Cent Price Is Justified.

Richland county commissioners said today they would ask Sheriff Frank E. Robinson for a report of expenditures for meals for county jail inmates to determine whether the price of 23 cents per meal paid to the sheriff is justified.

It will mark the first time in several years that the commissioners have sought a report of food costs at the jail. Under the state law, the sheriff must serve meals to prisoners at cost. The commissioners renewed the food contract about three months ago without asking for a report.

"I don't know that we can demand a weekly or monthly report from the sheriff, but I know he

'Mystery' Over, Mayor, Director Went to 'Opener'

The city administration was functioning again today with the return of Mayor William J. Locke from a combined business-pleasure trip to Cincinnati yesterday. They left without leaving word at city hall as to where they were going or where they could be reached in the event of an emergency.

Locke made the trip in company with the Safety-Service Director Fred B. Wolfe, O. C. Kalbfleisch, waterworks superintendent, and Wesley Purdy, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce water and sewer committee.

In commenting today on the trip the mayor indicated that he didn't feel it necessary to inform heads of other city departments that he would be out of the city. He said that the heads of the other departments, fire, police, water and sewer were all functioning and that "it would be a pretty poor department that couldn't get along by itself for a few hours."

Locke said the trip to Cincinnati to confer with the company that has handled the city waterworks' engineering problems for a number of years was timed so that he and his companions might attend the opening of the 1942 National league baseball season.

Approached as to the nature of the business discussed with the Cincinnati engineering company the mayor said that it was just "an informal meeting and nothing that I care to discuss right now."

Coughlin Publication Banned From Mails

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—A major offensive in the home front war against internal enemies was under way today as the government revoked the mailing privileges of "Social Justice," the weekly publication founded by Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest.

The publication was denied the use of United States mails on the ground that it had jeopardized the war effort by creating racial hatreds, openly lauding Axis gains and disparaging the war aims of the United Nations.

Specifically it is accused of violating the espionage act of 1917, and matter violating it is "non-mailable."

The revocation of the mailing privileges was ordered by Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, after consultation with Attorney General Francis Biddle. A representative of "Social Justice" was ordered to appear here April 29 to show cause why the ban should not be made permanent.

The move was the latest in a series of government actions designed to stop seditious activing and sniping at the government's war policies. The justice department has apprehended William Dudley Pelley, leader of the "Silver Shirts"; George W. Christians, of Chattanooga, Tenn., organizer of the "Crusader White Shirts"; Rudolph Fahl of Denver, Colo., and Robert Noble and Ellis O. Jones, both of Los Angeles. All were accused of violating the espionage act except Christians and Fahl who were charged with efforts to abet mutiny.

The action was taken by Walker after Biddle had advised him

CHANGE-BACK

Ohio Officials Meet to O. K. Old Senate Districts.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Gov. John W. Bricker, chairman of the decennial apportionment board today asked the board's other members, Secretary of State John E. Sweeney and State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, to meet with him Friday in compliance with an order of the Ohio supreme court which last week invalidated the board's new senatorial districts.

Bricker said he called the meeting to give formal approval to the old districts, which had been maintained for the past 10 years. Under the court's decision, no change can be made until the 1950 federal census.

The new districts were devised by Sweeney and Ferguson and approved by Governor Bricker, he said, only because he was in the minority.

Gen. Hugh Johnson, Columnist, Succumbs to Pneumonia Attack

Hugh S. Johnson, colorful leader of the NRA in the early days of the New Deal and more recently writer of a vigorous newspaper column which appeared daily in The News-Journal, died early today of pneumonia.

His death occurred in Washington where a year ago President Roosevelt had denied his request for a renewal of his commission as a reserve brigadier general.

He was 59 years old and had been ill for several months. He was confined to Walter Reed hospital until recently when he was moved to his apartment in the Wardman Park hotel. Pneumonia developed and he succumbed at 4:45 a. m., today.

GET ORDERS ON SUGAR RATIONS

City, County School Heads Get Instructions For Alloting Cards May 4-9.

Instructions for registering sugar-users under the government wartime rationing program were received today by the superintendents of Mansfield and Richland county schools.

Booklets containing information covering the registration at schools May 4 to 9 and the rationing process came directly from Washington. Hundreds more of the booklets are expected to arrive within a few days for distribution to all teachers who will conduct the registration.

Boyd Robinson, country superintendent, said he would call a meeting of county school superintendents and teachers to present the instructions to them.

He added that he may propose closing of schools during certain hours on the four registration days to avoid interference with the registration. The plan set up by the government calls for registration from 3 to 9 p. m., after most schools close for the day.

Commercial users of sugar such as restaurant proprietors will register at high schools and domestic users at elementary schools. It had not been determined today whether all the county's schools will be used for the registration.

Wallace Takes Supreme Command In Economic War

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Vice President Henry A. Wallace today assumed supreme command of the economic war offensive in a move that takes several economic warfare activities away from Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones.

Jones has been criticized recently for his handling of the rubber situation and also has been under fire as head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Under the new executive order, Wallace will have charge of the accumulation of stock piles of strategic war materials and will have the power to buy in foreign neutral countries needed materials or those that should be kept from the Axis.

CHARGE 3 USED BABY TO HELP STEAL 11 SUITS

Police Claim Man Carried Infant to Hide Stolen Wearing Apparel.

MOTHER CHARGED

Two Held to Grand Jury, Third Faces Juvenile Court on Grand Larceny Charge.

Three Columbus residents whom police claimed used a two-year-old baby to carry out a series of thefts which netted them 11 men's suits stolen at five Mansfield stores were arraigned in municipal court today on grand larceny.

Two of them were held for action by the Richland county grand jury and the third, a 17-year-old youth, was turned over to county juvenile authorities for hearing and sentencing. Bonds were fixed at $3,000 each.

Three members of Mansfield's traffic squad turned detective and brought about their arrest. Patrolmen Earl Korn, Robert Robnolte and Rocliff Hout took them into custody after checking movements of the trio in the business district yesterday afternoon.

They first arrested Clay Chaney, 42, of Columbus, as he came out of the Fashion Lane Clothiers, 16 West Third street, carrying a two-year-old baby while the infant's mother, Mrs. Gerald McQuirt, 23, also of Columbus, walked with him.

Under Chaney's topcoat, the traffic men said they found three suits which Chaney had grabbed off clothing racks in the store and had stuffed them under his coat. He held the baby in front of him to hide the bulge of the stolen clothing, police said.

Later, the officers arrested the brother-in-law of the woman, who said he was a juvenile and claimed he had no knowledge of the thefts.

County Prosecutor Harold T. Lutz who questioned the trio yesterday said Chaney was the "brains" behind the shoplifting scheme which netted the trio $381 worth of clothing before they were apprehended.

Beside the clothing stolen at the Fashion Lane store, Lutz said

BROOKS WINS

Pre-War Isolationist Named In Illinois Primary.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Illinois Republicans renominated Senator C. Wayland Brooks, pre-war isolationist, in yesterday's primary while Democrats chose Congressman Raymond S. McKeough, firm supporter of President Roosevelt during four terms in the house, to oppose Brooks in November.

Incumbent congressmen seeking renomination fared well. Of the 26 members of the Illinois delegation, ten were automatically renominated without contests and six either retired or ran for other offices. Eight of the ten running with oposition were leading and appeared likely to win.

The primary produced one close race on the Republican ballot. Stephen A. Day, an erstwhile isolationist seeking renomination for congressman-at-large, took a slight lead over Denison B. Hull, former chairman of the Chicago chapter of the Fight for Freedom Committee.

Leahy's Recall Expected; Japs Sink 15 Ships

Tokyo Says British Shipping Suffers Heavy Blow Off India Coast.

BULLETIN

UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Australia—(AP)— General MacArthur's headquarters announced today that United States air forces had made a smashing attack on Japanese bases in the Philippine islands. Details of the attack, the points raided and the take-off bases of the United States striking force were not forthcoming immediately.

(By Associated Press)

Tokyo naval quarters asserted today that Japanese warships operating close to the shores of India had sunk 15 large merchant ships in less than an hour in a surprise attack April 6 on a British convoy, while on the critical Burma war front, British and Chinese troops again were forced to retreat.

British headquarters conceded that Japanese invasion columns were now within 30 miles of the heart of the central Burma oil fields, chief source of China's oil supplies.

"Yesterday enemy pressure was increased over the whole front and fierce fighting was taking place," a British communique said.

In Tokyo, a Japanese naval commander declared Japanese warships sailed so close to the Indian coast that the sailors could see hills and white forts in closing in on the big British convoy.

The eye-witness account said convoy officers apparently mistook the raiders for British naval units and that the Japanese men o'war moved in until the 8-inch guns on the decks of the British ships were clearly visible, then opened fire.

Aside from the heavy blow to British shipping, the attack emphasized anew Prime Minister Churchill's statement that Japan now virtually controls the vital waters of the Indian ocean—in a position either to prey on Allied supply lines or to attempt a seaborne invasion of India.

Churchill said Japan had three

Aid to Free French Hinted; Capital Eyes Madagascar, Vichy Fleet.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON— (INS) —Moving a step closer to an open break, Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles today announced that the United States has suspended all arrangements for economic assistance to France.

Welles said that such arrangements wil remain in suspense pending a clarification of the developments at Vichy which have resulted in a return to power of Pierre Laval, champion of pro-German collaborationism and bitter foe of Great Britain.

Suspension of American economic assistance to France means that two ships which were being loaded in New York to carry non-military suplies to French North Africa will not sail.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States and Vichy France neared a break today, with the recall of Ambassador William D. Leahy generally expected in informed quarters.

The state department withheld any official indication of its reaction to the return of collaborationist Pierre Laval to a key position in the Vichy regime pending a report from Admiral Leahy on the developments.

A high government source frankly conceded last night, however, that a complete re-examination of American relations with Vichy "obviously" was neccesary. Whether this would lead to a final rupture of diplomatic relations was a matter on which observers here disagreed, but there were indications that the government was seriously weighing the advisability of calling Admiral Leahy home.

Such a recall could, of course, take place without formal severance of relations, leaving the situation between the American and Petain governments the same as that between Washington and Berlin in the months preceding actual warfare.

There was much conjecture as

ADVANCE: Reds Break Nazi Lines Drive Toward Key City

(By United Press)

KUIBYSHEV, Russia—Strong Russian forces are fighting at the approaches of a large and strategic city after crashing through two German defense lines, front dispatches said today.

(From recent reports reaching London, it was believed the unidentified city was either Bryansk on the south central front or Kharkov, the "Pittsburgh" of the Ukraine.

(Exchange Telegraph reported earlier this week that Russian shock troops had virtually encircled Bryansk, 225 miles southwest of Moscow and 60 miles west of Orel. Radio Moscow announced yesterday that the Soviets northwest of Kharkov had smashed a 25-mile-wide hole in the German defense line.)

Authoritative reports said one Russian unit in 10 days fighting had killed "thousands" of enemy soldiers and recaptured "many points."

Reports from abroad that the Russian front already has been transformed into a vast quagmire by spring thaws have been greatly exaggerated, Soviet military leaders said.

They admitted that heavy rains on the central front have reduced

PROBLEM: M'Arthur Slowed By Question of His Authority

(By United Press)

GENERAL M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS—An army spokesman revealed today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur had been unable so far to form his southwest Pacific Allied command and it was understood that problems affecting the entire matter of Allied grand strategy were the cause of the delay which Australians regarded as dangerous.

Prime Minister John Curtin, however, issued a statement saying he was "quite surprised" at the American army spokesman's statement and added:

"There is no doubt in the Australian government's view that General MacArthur is the supreme commander. I have treated him as supreme commander. I became defense minister to follow our desire to simplify the machinery between the supreme commander and our government."

The United States Army spokesman said that MacArthur had not, four weeks after his arrival in Australia, received from Washington the necessary decisions and instructions and that as the result he was as yet commander only of the American forces in the Far East and Australia.

The statement was made after President Roosevelt, at Washington, had said yesterday that MacArthur was in supreme command of all military, naval and air forces in the southwest Pacific.

It was understood that the composition of a supreme Allied staff and the desired exact definition battleships, five aircraft carriers and flotillas of destroyers operating off the Indian coast.

In the Philippines, a Tokyo broadcast said, Japanese bombers and heavy artillery on the Bataan coast joined in a violent bombardment of siege-bound Corregidor island fortress, in Manila bay, silencing an American battery and seriously damaging fortifications.

The broadcast also asserted that, "enemy remnants fleeing from the vicinity of Cebu City," in the central Philippines, 250 miles south of Manila, had been bombed and machine-gunned by Japanese warplanes.

Washington reports, however, said scattered bands of American and Filipino troops were waging steady bush warfare against the Japanese invaders to keep as many as possible engaged in the Philippine area.

American-Filipino troops were said to have carried out successful raids against Japanese positions in the mountains of northern Luzon island, and 600 miles to the south, another raiding party ambushed a Japanese truck column and inflicted heavy casualties.

On the Burma front, British headquarters said hard-fighting Chinese troops under Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, U. S. A., had been forced to give ground in the key Sittang river sector, guarding the road to Mandalay.

"It was reported from the Chinese expeditionary force field headquarters that Chinese forces on the southern front have withdrawn to Myohla, a few miles north of the Swa, fighting strong delaying action all the way," a British communique said.

"Enemy occupation of Migyaungye necessitated the withdrawal of our troops from that area."

Migyaungye, on the Irrawaddy river, is only 30 miles from the center of the Yanangyaung oil fields.

Vichy Angrily Turns Down U. S. Statement

VICHY —(AP)— a bitter issue with the United States overhung this government today as a new regime for vanquished France took shape on a "new foundation," bringing the once-ousted collaborationist Pierre Laval back to power.

As the French people waited to learn—probably tomorrow—just how laval will share authority with Marshal Petain and Admiral Jean Darlan, the government last night angrily rejected Washington's statement of its reasons for sending a consul general to Brazzaville accredited to the free French authorities in control of French Equatorial Africa.

France's answer declared that "the French government does not accept the note of the American government, couched in injurious terms which tend to discredit in the eyes of the world the conduct of French citizens who d nt have t take lessns in patrotism from abroad."

It added the government's observation "that the immediate divulging in unusual conditions of this strange document well shows that it was made for the ends of propaganda."

(The American note, a response to a French protest over the appointment, said Frenchmen collaborating with Hitler were "attempting to prostitute their country.")

started back toward the point where the cars were left. The plan was for the locomotive to be uncoupled from the second train, draw the standing cars onto a siding to let the second train pass through.

For some unexplained reason, however, the plan was not carried out. The second train, headed by the two locomotives, the forward one traveling backwards, plowed at a high rate of speed into the standing cars.

The two locomotives and eight freight cars derailed were left in zigzag fashion along the scene of the crash, and the tracks and track bed were dug up for a distance of some 200 feet. Most of the freight cars were empty, but one, which overturned beside the track, was filled with a shipment of steel and presented a particularly difficult problem for the work crews.

H. H. Harsh, of Newark, division superintendent of the road, arrived at the scene within several hours after the accident to direct work crews dispatched from Newark and Willard. Harsh, A. W. Colnott, division trainmaster, and representatives from the company's general offices in Cincinnati were directing the road's investigation.

Also expected to arrive at the scene later today to conduct separate investigations were representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Ohio Public Utilities Commission.

Company officials were hopeful that the wreckage could be cleared by nightfall. Meanwhile, trains were rerouted on to the Big Four tracks between Shelby and Greenwich.

Hundreds of spectators, many of them from nearby farms, lined the tracks to watch the clearing operations.

Railroad officials with customary taciturnity, declined to give an estimate of damage pending completion of the investigation, but it was apparent that loss was heavy. The locomotives were badly damaged, and several of the overturned cars were wrecked.

RAF Makes New Daylight Sweep

LONDON—(U.P.)—Large formations of British fighter planes raced across the Dover strait today in another daylight sweep of the French invasion coast after a night in which giant bombers set mammoth fires through Germany's vital industrial Ruhr.

The Royal Air Force, developing its greatest offensive of the war, was now engaged in a 24-hour attack which had thrown the German air force on the defense from Norway to France in fear that an Allied invasion of the continent was in prospect.

The air ministry said a strong force of bombers, believed to number in the hundreds, attacked the Ruhr, heavily bombed industrial targets and left many fires, some very large, burning in their wake as they turned homeward.

Other planes attacked docks at Le Havre on the French coast, and airdromes in occupied territory while a third formation laid mines in enemy waters through which a German fleet might try to break, possibly to raid the Anglo-American supply line to Arctic Russia.

Eleven bombers were missing.

Factories, believed to include the great Krupp munitions works at Essen; other war industries factories and railroads were attacked under conditions so good that precision bombing was possible.

USED BABY TO STEAL, CLAIM

they had stolen two suits each from Moskins' Credit Clothing company, the Batson company, the J. C. Penney store and the Brook's Quality Apparel store.

The prosecutor said that Chaney's story indicated they carried out the series of thefts by following out this scheme:

The three would walk into the store with Chaney carrying the baby. The youth, known as "Cotton," would start trying on topcoats. While a clerk was busy serving "Cotton," Chaney would lift a few suits off a rack and shove them under his coat.

Shaney would then give "Cotton" $30 presumably to buy the coat he was looking at and and would say, "We're going over to the five-and-ten-cent store. We'll meet you at the car," and they would walk out leaving "Cotton" in the store.

Later "Cotton" would decide he didn't care for the topcoat and would leave the store. He would go back to the car where Chaney had already stuffed the stolen suits into a bag and would give him back the $30 until they entered another store and the process would be repeated.

Patrolman Korn became suspicious of the trio and along with Patrolman Robnolte and Hout took up posts cutting off escape of the trio at either end of West Third street. The patrolmen followed the three down to the Fashion Lane store where Patrolmen Robnolte and Hout stood nearby while Korn approached the front of the store.

Pretending to be writing out a traffic violation ticket for an automobile parked in front of the store, Korn looked into the store and watched proceedings there.

When Chaney came out, the three patrolmen arrested him. They said he had stolen three suits, hiding the bulge in his clothing by carrying the baby in front of him.

Officers later found the other suits stuffed in a bag in the rear seat of the trio's automobile which was parked nearby.

The baby was taken to Columbus last night by his father, Gerald McQuirt, 1375 Ohlan avenue, Columbus, who came to Mansfield for the infant after being notified by local authorities.

to the possibility not only of a clean-break with Vichy but a more positive and all-out support of the Free French government. Informed sources cautioned, however, against jumping at conclusions.

What Hitler and the Japanese might be expecting to get out of the new turn in Laval's fortunes was a matter of grave concern here. Officials re-examining the whole structure of Vichy-Washington relations considered these questions:

The French fleet. The Allies are seriously engaged in the Pacific and Indian oceans; the Germans are known to be preparing the battleships Tirpitz, Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, the aircraft carriers Graf Zeppelin and Deutschland and other strong units for an Atlantic adventure and to be coveting what French warships escaped British guns at Oran or immobilization at Alexandria. Warships of the French fleet now based at Toulon could be a serious menace to the Allied position, if joined with the German and Italian fleets.

Madagascar. This strategic French island, now under Vichy control, may become the key to the battle for India and the British fight to keep a foothold in the Middle East. The Japanese fleet already is cruising the Indian ocean. With a base on Madagascar the Japanese position in the vital Indian theater would be similar to the one Tokyo held in the southwest Pacific at the start of the war with its bases in French Indo-China. Now Japan is believed to be exerting on Vichy the same sort of pressure which won her effective control of Indo-China last year.

Martinique and Guadaloupe. There have been repeated rumors that these French islands, in the windward group flanking the Panama canal, are the sites of secret submarine bases. American or American-supported Free French occupation of the islands would be no surprise to Washington observers if developments of the next few days should indicate that Laval was in a position to enforce a collaborationist policy in the western hemisphere.

Declares Corregidor Can, Will Be Held

CORREGIDOR FORTRESS, Manila Bay — (UP) — Corregidor can and will be held, Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright said today in an order of the day to the garrison of this United States island fortress, and he called on each person in it, including civilians, to gird himself for a 24-hour-a-day fight to keep the flag flying.

Wainwright's order was issued to the furious accompaniment of heavy artillery shells and airplane bombs with which the Japanese seek to crush the defenders and complete their victory in Bataan.

But Wainwright left no doubt that this rocky fastness would be defended to the ultimate end and that he believed it could be held.

"Bataan has fallen," he said. "But Corregidor will carry on. On this mighty fortress—a pearl of great price on which the enemy has set his covetous eyes — the spirit of Bataan will continue to live."

Officials Moving Out of Madras

NEW DELHI—(UP)—The Japanese invasion threat was emphasized today by announcement that parts of the Madras province secretariat would be removed from Madras city on India's southeast coast to Baganpalle, 200 miles inland.

Other parts of the secretariat already have been transferred to Ootacamund, 250 miles to the southwest. It was reported the provincial governor, Sir Arthur Hope, would remain in Madras.

Japanese bombers recently attacked coastal points north of Madras, India's third city and principal port of the Bay of Bengal.

DETROIT — (U.P.) — Father Charles E. Coughlin today blamed "the Jews and Communists and New Dealers" for the government action in barring publication of "Social Justice" from the mails.

"I am neither editor, owner nor publisher of Social Justice," he said. "However, if Attorney General Biddle wishes to summon me to Washington to defend the property of Social Justice, I will not only be happy to do so but will challenge him to the invitation."

Coughlin has not contributed to the magazine for two years, but its contents are based strictly upon the principles he enunciated in his long series of radio talks and each issue reproduces his sermons from the pulpit of the Royal Oak Roman Catholic church of which he is pastor. Each issue also carries his picture.

Authorities of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Detroit have repeatedly stated that Social Justice is not, in any sense, a publication of the church.

DOCTOR DIES

Dr. I. H. LeBarre, 67, Stricken In Bathroom at Home.

Mansfield lost one of its oldest practicing physicians today when Dr. Irvin Hiram LeBarre, 67, died of a heart attack as he was preparing to leave his home, 109 Lind avenue, for a trip downtown.

Mrs. LeBarre, who planned to accompany her husband, found the physician lying on the bathroom floor shortly after he had gone upstairs to dress for the trip. Death occurred about 10:50 a. m.

A Mansfield physician for more than 40 years, Dr. LeBarre served as Richland county coroner for several years. He had been in Plymouth only yesterday to see his son, Dr. Earl LeBarre, a dentist. One other son, O. H. LeBarre, resides at home and there are two grandchildren.

The body was taken to the Wappner funeral home, pending arrangement of services.

Out for Senate

State Senator Joseph Jameson of Lorain, one of the two senators in the 27th-29th district for the past two years, today announced he will seek re-election. The district, which includes Richland, Ashland, Medina, and Lorain counties, only last week was re-established by the Ohio supreme court which ruled illegal a plan which had split the district. Former Lorain Postmaster Jameson, sponsored the bill in the state legislature which set up the Ohio defense councils.

PROBE COST OF MEALS AT JAIL

Commissioners Seek to Find If Present 23-Cent Price Is Justified.

will be willing to work with us," Chairman C. L. Mitchell of the board of commissioners said.

The 23-cent cost in Richland county is higher than in some counties in Ohio where meals are served to prisoners by restaurants, but it is no higher than in most other counties the size of Richland, Sheriff Robinson said.

"I'll gladly turn back any profits to the county at the end of the year, and I don't think anything can be fairer than that," the sheriff added.

Contract for furnishing meals for prisoners at the jail is held by Mrs. Doris Freeman of Bellville, wife of Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman.

The meals, however, are prepared at the county jail by the sheriff's wife and a cook. Mrs. Freeman receives the check and turns it over to the sheriff under the county set-up which was approved several years ago by the comomn pleas court and county commissioners.

Sheriff Robinson said he understood the commissioners are not permitted to deal directly with the sheriff and the present set-up makes Mrs. Freeman his agent.

State examiners have never criticized the plan. In the last examination the examiner commended the sheriff's office for the accurate records he kept.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe pointed out today that the 23-cent meal figure here is two cents below the maximum permitted in the state.

The commissioners and Sheriff Robinson emphasized that food costs are increasing rapidly and they did not believe the present figure is out of line.

4 DAYS BETTER for Travel!

4 WAYS BETTER for Everybody!

1 MID-WEEK TRAVEL EASES WEEK-END CONGESTION
You make it easier for yourself if you take trips, whenever possible, on mid-week days when travel is lighter—and you make it easier for soldiers, sailors, and war workers to travel on week-ends, often the only time they can go.

2 BUS TRAVEL CONSERVES TIRES, CARS, VITAL MATERIALS
Each passenger can travel many miles farther by Greyhound than by private car—per pound of rubber, per gallon of gasoline. Then too there's the saving of wear and tear on your car and its valuable tires.

3 GET TICKETS, INFORMATION IN ADVANCE—AVOID DELAY
You can ease crowding at terminals if you get information about routes, fares and schedules—and get your tickets, too—well before you leave. On trips usually taken in midsummer—arrange to go early or late, thus dodging the July-August rush period.

ASHLAND — A continuing contract granted Eugene Smith, principal of Nankin school, has been valid by County Prosecutor A. Ross Silvering although there were only four members on the Nankin rural school board when the contract was granted.

Smith was rehired at a recessed session of the board on March 30. P. J. Johnson had resigned from the board on March 2, and his successor, Mrs. Paul Ford, did not qualify as a member until the April 6 meeting.

Vichy's Unavoidable Course

PITY, rather than anger, should be the reaction to return of Pierre Laval to power in Vichy, France. For sixteen months helpless "unoccupied" France, as represented by aged Marshal Petain, struggled against the absolute Nazi domination that has finally been attained.

The eventual fate of France, like that of other Axis-ridden European countries, must await defeat of Hitlerism on the continent and throughout the world. At no time has there been justification for assumption that Vichy could act as a free agent and the restoration of Laval as the agent of German control should occasion no surprise.

However much Vichy may have preferred another course, there was no military strength or resources to enforce claims to the right of self determination.

This outcome again serves to emphasize the futility of policies which the United States adopted toward Vichy, without being in position to give the military help needed to restore France to freedom.

Chief concern of the United Nations, as Nazi control becomes openly effective in unoccupied France, is the likelihood of immediate action in turning over the French fleet to Germany, and whether this can be accomplished in a way that will greatly increase Nazi strength in the Atlantic.

Whatever the results may be, Laval's restored power in Vichy must be considered as another successful diplomatic move by Hitler and an action that will bolster the Nazi war machine for at least a little while.

Busy Days for Draft Board Members

AN IMPORTANT civilian task, which is being done in a competent, impartial and praiseworthy way, is being performed by local draft board members, who serve without compensation and who give freely of time and energy to their work.

In the main, these men are near or past middle age and a number of them were in service in the World war. Each of the five members of Richland county's three draft boards was chosen on the basis of qualifications and dependability, and each accepted the responsibility as an obligation of patriotic citizenship.

While strict federal rules define their duties, in matters of registration, eligibility, classification, exemptions, etc., many specific cases require exercise of personal judgment in making border-line decisions.

Local draft boards are just now confronted with an exceptionally heavy work schedule, involving completion of lists of selectees for training, questionnaires being sent to registrants in the 35-45 age bracket, and preparation for registration of men in the 45 to 65 age group the latter part of this month.

Selection for service on a draft board is a high honor, yet one to which few would aspire is they knew of cares and difficulties which the job entails.

Fire-Fighting Equipment Is Essential

THE DIFFICULTY being encountered by the city of Mansfield in securing needed fire department equipment, because of governmental restrictions, is a matter of general concern rather than being merely a worry for city officials.

While there had already been too-long delay in modernizing the fire department, due to lack of funds, the present need is even greater than in normal times and adequate fire-fighting equipment is rightly considered an important part of civilian defense.

The material going into supplying immediate needs of Mansfield's fire department are small as compared with the destructive possibilities of an uncontrolled fire. It cannot be accepted as the thoughtful final decision of any responsible federal agency that cities should be deprived of necessary fire protection for the duration of war.

Although material requirements for the prosecution of war have first call it cannot be safely assumed that elements which play a vital part in war production and civilian activities are to be neglected to the point of serious danger.

Cars Are Valuable, Be Careful

THE SAME elements of carelessness, recklessness and unconcern that marked the pre-war conduct of some motorists are still in evidence on Mansfield streets—although possibly not to the extent noted when cars and tires were more easily obtainable.

The early Tuesday morning occurrence which resulted in injury of Patrolman Conrady was no more than a fairly typical example of the lack of control over their car which some drivers have in emergencies, and also of failure to give constant attention to the job of driving.

Many of the so-called "minor accidents" do not reach police court attention, as in the recent instance of a youthful driver on a residence street carelessly crashing into an automobile parked at the curb and sending it a half block down the street, with considerable damage to both cars.

Nor does it attract police notice when an intoxicated motorist, leaving a drunken party long after midnight, mistakes front yards for the roadway and drives blithely across a beautiful lawn, leaving deeply gullied wheel tracks.

Thoughtful motorists realize that the car and tires they are now using will probably have to last them for the duration of war, and are exercising unusual care in trying to avoid accidents or damage. Even some of those who had previously been careless have cut down speed and voluntarily adopted safer driving habits.

There are others, however, who still require restraint and this can be best accomplished by consistently strict enforcement of traffic regulations and continued effort to impress habitually careless drivers with the importance of conserving their car and tires.

Pondering one thing and another, Robert Quillen blurts out: "Better learn the hard way than not at all, but must we always suffer disaster to learn that officials are dumb?"

It seems that all of Michigan's majority decisions against capital punishment have been made during lulls between atrocious murders.

In an emergency, if worst comes to worst in the matter of men's clothing, those buttons on coat sleeves might be omitted.

An appropriate name may sometime be hit upon, but for present purposes THE war seems to suffice.

TWO FRONTS

Navy Revises Policy of Silence

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Public opinion forced the radical revision of the navy's policy of not announcing sinking or capture of submarines. The other day when the sender of the "Sight sub; sank same" message got his second U-boat (and was promoted to ensign) the navy department announced that at least twenty-eight subs had been put out of action.

This was still far from what the people wanted to know. For instance, the official statement said that these twenty-eight had been eliminated "in the Atlantic and Pacific"; so obviously it includes some Jap subs sunk in the Southwest Pacific. What the people were worked up about was the sinkings by subs in the Atlantic, which had become such a menace as to worry the British government.

If we had been told more often just how many subs were being sunk in the Atlantic and particularly in waters close to our own shores there may have been a greater feeling of relief. The navy still likes the notion, which originated with the British navy in the last war, that it is much better tactics not to let the enemy know when one of its subs has been destroyed.

THE THEORY of the British, which we have adopted, is that the German admiralty has a pattern in its placing of submarines for operations against supply lines. The thought is that when a couple of holes have been smashed in this pattern, and the enemy does not know it, we can take advantage for a short period, perhaps reaching into weeks, of that superior knowledge—run ships through the hole in the line, so to speak.

This theory is supported by a wealth of experience, the British admiralty believes, so it is difficult to argue against it. It is supported also by the fact that while submarines can surface at night and listen for radio orders they do not dare use their own wireless for sending. To do so would locate them for hostile warships and planes.

BUT people like to hear about the enemy getting hurt, especially when there is so much bad news. Generals have been known to allow their troops to fire at the enemy when they KNEW it was just wasting ammunition, just to keep the morale of their men up.

So the navy now is doing the best it can in that direction without actually flying in the face of the major strategy in submarine warfare. Hence the announcement that twenty-eight enemy submarines have been put out of action "in the Atlantic and Pacific."

It is not always easy to be SURE that a submarine is demolished. But in most of the attacks on the Atlantic coast the locating of the sub and the dropping of the depth charges have been done by airplane, and a man in a plane, circling over the spot where the quarry was last seen, has a much better chance of determining whether the attack was effective than would the men on a destroyer, due to the fact that one can see farther under the surface from a plane than from a destroyer's bridge.

Man About Manhattan

Open Secret

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A quiet little man with soft eyes and a sad smile used to live in a room above a restaurant not far from where Seventh Avenue, with its subways, its buses, cabs and traffic hurries past the intersection at Chambers street.

This man worked for an importing house that has its warehouses on the west side, and for more than 20 years he served as a clerk's assistant in an atmosphere of ginger and cloves, pepper and tea.

Seven years ago he remained away from his job for three days because of a slight illness, and those were the only days he ever missed in all of his two decades of employ.

THE other day this man sat down and composed a letter to his employer. It was a letter of resignation, a confession of misdeeds, a plea for understanding, a manifestation of hope for the future, and a farewell.

Who was he? What were his misdeeds? What happened to him, and what were his employer's reactions to the letter?

It's a curious story, so fundamentally human that I wonder if most of us haven't come close to something like it ourselves sometime or other.

"I always wanted to steal something," the little man wrote, "but I never quite dared.

"I wanted to steal something, and get away with it without being caught. I have always wanted to steal something. Not because I needed it. The thing was there in my mind, and it remained there, and I would drive it out but it would return again and again.

"I once planned to steal $20, and I thought about it for weeks, and I couldn't sleep. That's when I became ill, and when I became well I seemed to be all right. But after awhile it came back into my mind, and I couldn't put it away, and so this is to tell you that over a period of a few weeks I stole about $30 worth of spices and tea from the warehouse. I took the things in small quantities, a little at a time. I carried them away at night in my pockets, and I kept them in my room, and it is all there now, every grain and every leaf of it, and here is the key to my room."

THERE was more. He said, "I don't know why I am this way but I am, and I have always been this way, and if I haven't done anything worse it is because of a lack of gumption and not through any moral strength."

I have copied this letter from the original, which is now in a safe of the man who, for the most of those 20 years, was the employer of our hero.

"Hell," he said, "I knew it all along. Everybody in the outfit knew it. We used to make little jokes about it. He was as nervous as a cat and transparent as a windowpane. We know he didn't mean anything by it, and I think I understand just how he felt. He was lonely. He never married. Some men shoot tigers. Others swim the Hellespont. This was his bid for adventure."

MacArthur

—By ANNE CAMPBELL

Give us men like MacArthur,
Men with his strength, and fire,
Who put their country's welfare
Before their own desire.

Men who will stop their quarrels,
And pledge their hand and brain
To set the flag of Freedom
On every hill and plain.

Give us men like MacArthur,
Who waste no time in sorrow;
Men who will do their country's will
Today, their own tomorrow.

Give them MacArthur's purpose!
Put them in planes and ships.
Send them into the battle
With songs upon their lips!

Give them his burning courage!
Give them his holy zeal,
And watch the world turn slowly
Nearer our heart's ideal!

Postmaster General Sits Idly By While Axis Poison Floods Mails

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It looks as if the president will have to give Postmaster General Frank Walker the same dose of personal prodding that finally snapped Attorney General Francis Biddle out of his moon-gazing lethargy and started him cracking down on seditious operators.

A venomous flood of Axis propaganda is daily going through the mails. It is no secret. Walker knows all about it. For weeks he has been bombarded with complaints from outraged citizens demanding that this subversive activity be stopped.

The postal inspection service knows all about it. The oldest and one of the most efficient sleuthing agencies in the government, the inspection service, is itching to move in.

But with one exception, Walker has done nothing. The exception was The Galilean, a publication put out by William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirt leader recently arrested by the FBI on charges of sedition. The paper finally was barred from the mails, but only after strong official pressure on Walker.

But the several hundred other seditious publications continue to have free access to the U. S. mails to spread their vicious pro-Axis lies and poison.

Among the worst of them are a number of foreign language papers edited by alien Fascists, who are under investigation by the FBI. If he needed any information on them, Walker could get it in a few minutes by a telephone call to the justice department, two blocks down Pennsylvania avenue from his huge, ornate office.

But to date Walker hasn't done a thing to halt this sinister flood of enemy propaganda.

During the World war not only were such publications barred from the mails but the post office department obtained the willing co-operation of express companies to refuse to carry any matter banned by the department.

Walker is one of the most genial officials in Washington. But he is not noted for either initiative or forcefulness. He never does anything that might disturb the peace of his easy-going daily routine of running a government department that runs itself.

Roosevelt's Memory.

IN PAST YEARS when the president received the first poppy from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, opening their annual fund-raising drive for the widows and orphans of ex-service men, he took great delight in showing the little girls who presented the poppies a china donkey and elephant on his desk, and asking them which they liked best.

Sometimes, to the embarrassment of VFW officials, the tots chose the elephant. This year no chances were taken. Geraldine Reynolds, five-year-old orphan of an AEF veteran, was carefully coached to point to the donkey.

But Geraldine didn't get a chance to show her political astuteness. The president, perhaps for reasons of national unity, didn't put her on the spot. Instead, he gave VFW officials something else to talk about—a demonstration of his remarkable memory.

When little Geraldine was perched on his desk for a picture, the president demurred: "Oh, no, that's the way we posed when I got a poppy last year. Suppose you stand down here beside me to make it different this year."

Jones' Experts.

THERE was one illuminating portion of Jesse Jones' testimony on the rubber shortage before the Truman committee that was not reported in the press accounts of the hearing.

This was his interrogation by Senator Ralph Brewster of Maine on the experts Jones consulted when he decided in 1941 to reduce sharply the synthetic rubber production program recommended by Edward Stettinius, then OPM raw materials director.

The following is the Brewster-Jones exchange:

Brewster: The report recommended the creation of a committee of experts to pass on these technical questions. Did you create such a committee?

Jones: Well, I don't know what you call experts.

Brewster: I don't think that is susceptible of definition. I think either you know it or you don't.

Jones, answer was a long statement about consulting with "people in the industry."

Brewster: Now, did you or didn't you have a committee of technical experts?

Jones: I don't know whether we had a committee or not.

Brewster: Mr. Jones, that is a very amazing statement.

Jones: I don't think it is amazing at all.

Brewster: You don't know whether you had a committee of technical experts or not?

Jones: I don't know what an expert is.

Brewester: Well, you know what a committee is, don't you?

Jones: We had a committee. We had a great many people working on it.

Brewster: Well, I think, we can conclude then that you did not constitute a committee. Is that a correct conclusion?

Jones: That is your answer. It isn't mine.

Merry-Go-Round.

ON the insistence of his doctor, Federal Works Administrator Philip Fleming, went to Florida to recuperate from a severe grippe attack, but that didn't keep him from working. At Boca Chica, the hideaway near Key West discovered last year by a number of artists, writers and high federal officials, Fleming completed the details of the new military highway to Alaska. . . . Representative Ewing Thomason, able, hard-working member of the house military affairs committee, is rated by army chiefs as one of the best civilian military experts in the country. . . . Following the speeches of Senators Joe Ball of Minnesota, and Alex Wiley of Wisconsin, on the anniversary of the day Norway was invaded by the Nazis, acclaiming the heroic resistance of the Norwegian people to their conquerors, the senate cloakrooms buzzed with comment over the failure of Senator Henrik Shipstead to say anything. Of Norwegian descent on both sides of his family, Shipstead was a bitter isolationist up to Pearl Harbor. Since then, while voting for war measures, he is still on close terms with isolationist leaders.

Health And Diet

Service Tests Reveal Defects.

THE whole country, including the President of the United States, has been unnecessarily shocked on account of the number of rejections for the new army. According to Dr. Roger I. Lee, President of the American College of Physicians: "The greatest per cent of physical deferments in Selective Service has been made so far for defective teeth and defective eyesight, regulations for which and the interpretation thereof by draft boards have been over-rigid."

Dr. Lee is notable for common sense and this pronouncement is an example of it. The teeth and the eyes are very complicated anatomical instruments and the theoreticaly perfect set of teeth and the theoretically perfect set of eyes are very rare.

Slight Imperfections.

To take the teeth, which can be more easily explained, if your two upper teeth do not meet exactly the edges of your two lower teeth, then you are in a defective class. Of course, this doesn't mean that your general health is bad or that you cannot do just as strenuous work as somebody else whose teeth do happen to occlude perfectly.

The eye is a spherical globule filled with liquid and naturally the geometrical projection of the sphere is not absolutely perfect. This does not necessarily result in bad eyesight and certainly does not necessarily mean bad general health. All such defects can be corrected by glasses and the majority of them are corrected by exercise and unconscious adaptation by the person himself.

Another common preventable defect which was detected by the Selective Service Boards is squint or cross eye in one eye. Many of these have been corrected by surgery. Neglect of after-care in the way of eye exercises sometimes makes the operation useless, because such exercise makes the vision nearly perfect.

Another cause of rejection has been opacities of scars of the cornea. The cause of this defect is possibly an infection or a lack of vitamin B complex and when healing has taken place, the amount of visual defect is very slight and is not likely to return.

There is no reason for hysteria about the state of the national health on the basis of the rejection of draftees, especially since the majority of the rejections were made on the basis of dental and visual defects, which have no significance as far as general health is concerned, and are easily corrected. Many of the fighting men with one bad eye or a few missing teeth in the last war cleaned out a machine gun nest.

Stripping For Action.

A letter from an American soldier to his brother at home is worth quoting.

"We have been given orders," he says, "to dispense with all personal possessions cumbersome to military movements. Our instructions have been to arrange all matters pertaining to the legal settlement of property. That is all, until we have seen the setting of the Rising Sun."

Evidently the soldier and his comrades were stripping for departure and action. There is much of that now, far more than a casual citizen would suspect. And in a manner of speaking, we're all in the same boat. So how about us civilians dispensing with a lot of things that are cumbering our movements?

Our lives, our homes, our offices, our surroundings in general, are often cluttered and confused. We can stand what we have to stand, and do what we have to do, much better if we get rid of superfluous things.—Lorain Journal.

A Farmer's Diary

Soil Is Basic

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I BOUGHT some Winesap apples from two different stores, and sampled them. The aroma and general appearance were identical. Both were pleasant eating—but I plainly detected a marked difference in the rich yellow cells of one, as compared with the whiteness of the other. They were, truly, not brothers under the skin. Later, when I returned to town I found one purchase had been grown in my neighbor's orchard, the other a thousand miles from here.

The constituents of the soil had made a difference. The idea that "all dirt is not soil" fit for farming will bear impressing. Few of us realize how vitally we, ourselves, are connected with the soil on which we live—from which our food is grown.

Down in Deaf Smith county, Texas, dental troubles are almost unknown. Teeth of the entire population are sound and perfect. Deaf Smith county is high level plain, topped with dark sandy loam. Below the loam is clay containing high percentage of calcium carbonate. Wheat grown there has high protein content and is six times as high in phosporus as the average standard flour. Milk samples from Deaf Smith county contain 30 per cent more phosphorus than accepted standards. All foodstuffs grown there are especially rich in fluorine, phosphorus calcium and vitamin D.

We feed ourselves when we feed our soil—save ourselves, when we conserve it. Perhaps some day vegetables and meat and fruits, eggs, milk and cream will be graded for their vital life-giving content, instead of for size, color, convenience and attractiveness of container.

Perhaps, as a byproduct of this war, we shall find out more about the goodness of the earth—the vast unexplored fields of nutrition and growth that are such tantalizing fields for exploration.

"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," may have more meaning then.

With Our Neighbors In the Armed Services

BY ALVIN L. KRIEG.

Bringing to 32 the number of recruits leaving this area in two days for navy service, 13 young men—three of them from Mansfield, started on their way to becoming full-fledged members of Uncle Sam's sea arm by departing today for the Great Lakes Naval Training Station in Illinois.

Nineteen others, six from Mansfield, left yesterday for Great Lakes. That contingent was made up of the following:

Allen A. Dare, Virgil R. Harden, Warren J. Ling, Amos E. Bennett, Edwin F. Hardman and Giles E. Hamilton, all of Mansfield; Richard L. Bollinger, Warren C. Hoffman and Frederick R. Mellot, Bellville; Raymond H. Burrows, Shelby; Ralph Young, George K. Long, Robert M. Pollin and Kenneth R. Heimberger, Loudonville; Charles LaFever and William H. Hull, Mt. Vernon; Robert B. Stull, Bucyrus; Edward D. Tracht, Galion, and Billie R. Frank, Perrysville.

Today's contingent comprised: Edward A. Frisbee, Manly L. Davis and Howard L. Doerrer (R. D. 5) Mansfield; Eugene S. Noland and Paul N. Grimm, Mt. Vernon; William W. Danner, Floyd W. Emminger, and Harold W. Hazlett Jr., Ashland; Robert E. Lane, R. D. 1, Marengo; Lynn S. McMillen, Crestline; Sherly L. Rissler, Lucas; Jack R. Valk, Shelby, and William C. Sypert Jr., Warren.

Officers of the Naval Recruiting Station in Mansfield report considerable interest has been shown in their recent operation of temporary substations in postoffices of other cities and towns in this area. In pursuance of this practice, Charles Sholtz, one of the recruiting officers here, opened a three-day "stand" today at the Mt. Vernon postoffice.

He will remain there Thursday and Friday to interview applicants for either the Regular Navy or the Naval Reserve. Office hours are from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Don't Address Ships Direct, Navy Says

The Navy has asked the public to use only one of two designated postoffice addresses in writing to naval personnel afloat and overseas in order to conceal the locations of ships from the enemy.

There are only two postoffice addresses that should be used in writing any person aboard a seagoing ship. They are c/o Postmaster, New York, and c/o Postmaster, San Francisco, depending upon which is nearer the addressee.

"Even if you know that a seagoing ship of the U. S. Navy is at a certain harbor, don't address mail to her there," the Navy said. "To do so may reveal her position to any person who sees or handles the letter, and this information may fall into the hands of the enemy."

COMPLICATED BUT IT WORKS

PROVIDENCE, R. I. —(U.P.)—If fire should break out in the Hope high school chemical storeroom, mouse traps would snap, metal pegs would bend on the walls, electric light bulbs would smash—and the fire would be extinguished.

All these reactions to fire represent the working of a student-made extinguisher system. The "fire releases" are easily-melted metal pegs. On them are balanced burned-out electric light bulbs filled with carbon tetrachloride, an effective chemical extinguisher.

Under 200 degree heat, the pegs bend over and allow the bulbs to smash on the floor and release the chemical. Metal strips also are used as mouse-trap catches, which are released under extreme heat. Bulbs placed in the trap thus are smashed.

Clock Operated By Changes In Air Pressure

STOCKHOLM —(INS)— Sweden's world famous perpetual motion clock, born in 1916, is still going strong. It has thus kept on ticking, without once having been wound up, for more than a quarter of a century.

It is actuated by the changes in the air pressure and is so constructed that even if there should be no such change for 12 months—a condition which is only theoretically possible—it will still keep going.

The motive power is derived from seven hermetically sealed metal boxes, which are affected by the changes in the atmospheric pressure. The movements in the surfaces of the boxes are employed to hoist a weight which drives the clock.

During the past 25 years this remarkable clock has functioned without disturbances, and is expected to keep on running endlessly. So far, the weight has never been near its bottom position, and it is estimated that the clock will only stop from the wearing out of some part. The only care the clock requires is a drop of oil now and then. The timepiece is on the estate of Th. Dieden, the designer and constructor, near the city of Orebro, in Central Sweden.

OHIO SPEEDS UP WAR PRODUCTION BY CONVERSION

Tops Output Which Prior To Conflict Was Greater Than All Japan's.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Glowing blast furnaces and pounding strip mills of northern Ohio alone were producing more war material than all Japan before the war. Today, with the conversion of civilian industries into war production, those figures are being surpassed mightily.

A small example is the case of Frank Corrao, 24-year-old machanist who turned his backyard garage in Cleveland into a war shop employing 10 men, five full time.

The young machinist and his helpers surface plates for tool and die ordnance manufacturers. The plates, their surfaces shaved to one-five-thousandths of an inch, are used in checking precision work.

Corrao moved his automobile out and his simple equipment in. Stock piles and equipment, plus the workers, have taken up all the room and Corrao plans to move into larger quarters shortly.

A prominent candy manufacturer in Cleveland retained a large staff of women making sweets. These women, many employed for years, were in danger of losing their jobs when the government rationed sugar. Nothing daunted, the manufacturer converted his factory to the making of mattress covers for army beds.

The manufacturer said he simply couldn't fire the women who had been in his employ so long; he didn't want to see his plant standing idle, and he decided that mattress covers are more important than candy.

When the conversion order came, northern Ohio plants, well known for the extent of their diversified activities, did not find the change-over too difficult.

These are some of the changes:

From hot water heaters to tank parts; model airplane toys to diesel engine parts; sewing machine to machine gun parts; custom automobile bodies to jeep cars for the United States army; steel beer barrels to oxygen tanks for the air corps.

Flashlight batteries to gas mask parts; automobile accessories to diesel engine fittings; radio antennas to bomb fuse assemblies; washing machines to 37-millimeter shells and .50-calibre gun mounts; auto parts to mortar shells and incendiary bomb casings; safes to armored plates, furniture upholstering to chevrons.

REPORTS SHOW CRIME DECLINES

March Police Records Reveal Fewer Robberies, Thefts During Month.

Police records show that the arrival of March and spring usually bring with them a decided increase in the number of crimes committed, in Mansfield but March, 1942, seems to have been an exception.

Records show that a total of only $427 worth of articles was stolen in March with $89 worth being recovered as compared to the theft of $1,093 in February and $3,760 in January.

Police can usually count upon at least one or two automobile thefts in a month but March showed not a single one. During February, one car was taken while three were stolen in January.

The sudden drop, according to police is because of the effect of rationing on tires and other automobile appliances and the departure of a goodly percentage of Mansfield's youth from the city by way of the draft. Police contend that the combination of youth and automobile, especially in the spring is one of the big factors in crime frequency.

During March, 14 burglaries garnered thieves only $34 while other thefts got them $393. February had 17 burglaries and 15 thefts.

KINGS ROW + + + + +

By Henry Bellamann

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER XXIII

Kings Row watched. Like any pack of the wild they waited for the victim to falter. But they were at least temporarily disappointed. Drake looked as usual. He whistled as he walked. He was persistent in his search for work. He was offered a job at the livery stable, but he hadn't come to that yet. He stayed on at the house on Union street. Only when he was inside of it with the doors closed did he show his deep disgust.

He made Randy promise not to let Parris know. No use troubling Parris. It never occurred to him that Parris had money and he didn't. It was simply that he didn't want Parris bothered about this. Then, of course, he'd get it all fixed up someway pretty soon.

But Drake did not "fix things up." The winter passed, and he had no job. He tried for anything he thought he might be able to do. Everywhere the men he talked to were good-humored and jocular—sometimes a shade contemptuous. By spring he was becoming sensitive. He avoided mention of a job unless he was actually making application. He was casual on the outside but watchful and attentive inside. He immediately followed any suggestion he heard of a possible job.

Then he began to pretend he wasn't looking for work.

He left the boarding house and cooked his own meals. At first he made a frightful mess of it, but later he improved. When Randy found out about it she came sometimes late in the evening and helped him. She put the rooms in order and taught him something about helping himself. By the end of the summer his cash was running alarmingly low. He supposed he'd have to give a second mortgage on the house. But he wouldn't be able to raise much.

Now he did his own washing, and dried the clothes in the kitchen so no one would know.

People said Drake McHugh was drinking.

"Yes, sir, I saw him staggering out of Fritz Bachman's lunchroom just last Saturday. Drunk as a fool."

Fritz Bachman's lunchroom, which was patronized by railroad men, was also a convenient "blind tiger."

Somehow Drake found himself going rather often to Fritz Bachman's place. Sleep came with increasing difficulty. He had made it a habit to stop by the smelly little lunchroom when he left Randy's house at night It was directly on the way home. He exchanged a few rough jokes with Fritz, gulped a glass of whisky, and went home. Randy knew nothing of this.

One day in a kind of desperation he went to see Peyton Graves. Peyton had a new office, better fitted up than any office in town.

Peyton leaned back in his chair. He did not rise or offer to shake hands

Drake smiled at the surroundings. "Well, well! You look like a bank president in here, Peyton."

"Rather better than that, don't you think?"

"Well, maybe."

"What can I do for you, Drake?"

"Just dropped in to see how you're getting along, Peyte. Are you busy?"

"Pretty busy, Drake, just now."

"Well, I'll come again."

"You've had a lot of bad luck, haven't you?"

"Yeh. Pretty bad. I'll get things straightened out, though. How's your big proposition coming on?"

"You mean the West End Crescent?"

"Is that what you call it?"

"Yes. Well, pretty fine, Drake. I finally got Macmillan St. George interested, and he talked old Thurston into it. They are going to let me put it through. Takes money, though."

"Yeh, I guess so."

"Thurston St. George thinks I ought to build out there myself and made one bang-up place just to show how it would look."

"I see. Sounds right smart, Peyte."

Peyton sighed and moved some papers suggestively. "Too bad you lost your money, Drake. That would have been a fine proposition for you and me."

"Well, I was just going to ask you, Peyton, if you don't need some help."

Peyton flushed. "Gosh, Drake. I haven't got a thing for you to do. You know, of course, this thing's just getting going. I'm working altogether with other people's money—for the time being. Later—maybe."

"Well, I just thought—"

"I'm awfully sorry, Drake. Wish I did have something."

"So long, Peyte. Good luck."

Young Peyton Graves' new house was the subject of much discussion. Of course, everybody knew that the St. Georges were back of Graves, but it did show what an enterprising young man could do in Kings Row. There was a boy now came up from the river-bottom country.

The new house, now being built on the knoll just above the public school, was a new kind of house to Kings Row. Peyton Graves was going "whole hog" on it. Mrs. Graves used such unfamiliar terms as master bedrooms, dressing rooms, sun parlor, and breakfast room. Kings Row didn't quite know what to make of it, though most of the women read the same magazines Mrs. Graves read.

Each year in this part of the country the January weather repeated a familiar cycle. Hard, bright cold after New Year. Then, in mid-month a few days—sometimes a week—of warm, spring-like airs. Immediately afterward roaring winds came from the northwest whirling sleet and snow, and freezing the ground until it was hard as iron. Dark weather.

Drake walked west on a narrow street that dodged in a zigzag way across town. He was walking straight into the wind. Better to face it going than coming.

He had had a letter from Parris that morning — a longish letter this time. Parris said he was terribly busy, working harder than ever, but now that his stay was certainly more than half over he had begun to think about his return. He couldn't hope now to start back to America before September of 1902. He had been in correspondence with Dr. Nolan, the medical head of the state asylum, the situation looked encouraging. Why didn't Drake write? What was he doing? Had he really ever started that real-estate venture? And how about Louise? Had Kings Row heard about Vera? Vera had come to Vienna, and played with the Royal Philharmonic. She'd made a real success. Vera had developed amazingly in every way. Musicall, of course, but did Drake remember what a funny-looking little washed-out thing she had always been? Well, she was positively glowing. But she hadn't had much news of Kings Row either. Vera thought of staying in Europe permanently. But, of course, any kind of life must seem wonderful to her after all the years she had lived cooped up in those narrow rooms above the Lichinsky jewelry store.

Almost two more years before Parris would return. Almost as long as the time he had been absent. And that had seemed an eternity. He had never told anyone how much he missed Parris, not even Randy. He couldn't explain that to anyone. It was hard for him to understand it himself. He had never felt that way about anyone. He remembered how Parris used to seem so much younger, and how he listened to advice. Advice—and from him! Now Parris seemed to him to be wise, and steady, and older. If only Parris were here a lot of things would surely straighten themselves out right away. He wouldn't drink if Parris were here: he wouldn't want to He'd have somebody to talk to — somebody who understood everything—everything

It was colder. The wind was leveling out into a steady cutting blast. He'd have to get in somewhere. Darned if he wasn't half frozen. . . .

Drake made a wide arc about the lower end of town. He came presently to the railroad and followed it to Fritz Bachman's place. He fumbled the doorknob with numb fingers.

"Give me a drink, Fritz."

"Hey, there, Drake. You go out and rub a piece of ice on your face—you got two frozen spots on your cheeks—end of your nose, too."

Drake stumbled out and returned presently with his face fiery red.

"All right now, Fritz?"

"Yes—the white spots are gone. But I wouldn't set too close to that fire for a while."

"Where's my drink?"

"Better step into the back room. Drake. I bring it."

Drake dropped into a chair at a small table in Fritz's back room. He couldn't think, and he couldn't even shape his feelings into any kind of order.

"Pour me a glass, Fritz; my fingers are stiff as pokers. Here—fill it full. I need it."

Sheriff Sam Winters finished up a cup of coffee, and stood up. He walked over to the stove and toasted his fingers before putting on his leather-and-wool gloves. He glanced toward the back room.

"Who you got in there, Fritz?"

Fritz looked up from his account book. "Back room? Oh, it's that McHugh feller."

"Drunk?"

"Yeh. Dead to the world for the last two hours. Don't know what to do with him, neither. I ain't a-going to take him home, not tonight."

"Well, you can't turn him out. He'll freeze, sure as hell."

Fritz grumbled a little. "What I do, then? I want to close up and go home now pretty soon."

"Well, you sold him the likker, didn't you?"

"Sure. Good stuff, too."

Sam looked straight at Fritz. "You'd turn that boy out, wouldn't you?"

"I got to go home."

"Well, I tell you what I'll do. I can't git him home no way when he's as drunk as that. You help me and I'll take him to the calaboose for the night so's he won't git froze somewhere. He'll be safe till mornin'."

"All right, I help you."

The town lockup was only a block or two away, but it was hard to support Drake that distance.

Fritz slipped and puffed. "Hell, what are we botherin' for?"

"Shut your mouth, and hold him up there."

"All right. An' the next time he comes in my place, I throw him out."

"You do, and I'll kick you from here to McGowan's Crossing. Hold him up, I told you!"

Randy Monaghan's father opened the door of the kitchen stove and laid several sticks of wood on the coals. It was Sunday morning, and he had had breakfast two hours earlier. But he didn't really know what to do with himself on Sunday.

There was a slow, undecided knock on the door. Mr. Monaghan opened it, first kicking out of the way a piece of rug carpet laid to keep the cold air from coming in the wide crack at the threshold.

"Good morning, Mr. Monaghan."

"Why, good morning, Drake. Come in, come in."

Mr. Monaghan stared hard at Drake. The boy looked like a tramp. He wasn't shaved, his hair was tousled, and his shirt was unfastened at the throat.

"What's up, Drake?"

"I want to talk to you a little while, Mr. Monaghan. Is Randy here?"

"She's upstairs.

"I don't want her to see me this morning, looking like this. I just want to talk to you."

"How about a cup of coffee?"

"No, thank you, Sam Winters gave me some coffee."

"Sam Winters?"

"Yes. I was locked up in the calaboose last night, Mr. Monaghan."

Mr. Monaghan set the coffeepot down with a clotter. "What for?"

"I got drunk at Fritz Bachman's and Sam Winters happened to come along about the time Fritz wanted to close up. Sam took me to the calaboose, so I wouldn't freeze somewhere."

Mr. Monaghan grunted.

"I want a job, Mr. Monaghan!"

"Well?"

"Could you get me a job on the railroad?"

The weather-beaten old man looked keenly at Drake. "You're not strong enough to do the work, son."

"I'd get strong doing it, maybe."

"Tell you what I think I can do."

"Yes?"

"I'll talk to Mr. Turner tomorrow. I believe he'd give you a job in the yards—switchman, or flagman, or something. Sure you'd be willing to take that kind of a job, Drake?"

400 CHILDREN WILL RECEIVE PHYSICAL EXAM

Health Department Completes Schedule For Pre-School Examinations.

Approximately 400 children expected to enter Mansfield schools next fall will be given a physical check-up at the annual pre-school clinic of the Mansfield Health department scheduled to open on May 18.

Dr. William B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, announced today that he had completed the schedule for the 1942 examinations and was asking school officials to cooperate in the program.

The children will be examined for defects of vision, hearing, heart, lungs, skin, and nutrition. According to Dr. Wild, Mansfield physicians and dentists will aid the health department in making the examination.

Dr. Wild is setting up a schedule for a similar pre-school clinic for county pupils. The county examinations are tentatively scheduled for the week of May 11 but Dr. Wild said that conferences were being held wth school board officials to determine if that week will be suitable for all county schools.

The city examinations will be held at the rooms of the health department. Dr. Wild said that county examinations will also be held there if possible. In some instances, workers from the health department may have to go to county school districts to hold their clinic.

All city school pupils examinations will be held from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m. The schedule for the examination of city pupils is as follows: Bowman school district, May 18: Prospect and Hedges school districts, May 19: Woodland, Western and Brinkerhoff districts, May 20; Bushnell and Newman districts, May 21: and St. Peter's, West Fifth and Carpenter districts, May 25. New pupils not able to attend any of these sessions will be examined on May 26.

BANK SAYS FARMERS BENEFIT MOST BY RAISING FOOD PRICES

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—The Cleveland Trust Company calculated today that "farmers have received nearly all the increases in the rising prices of food since the advances got under way in 1939."

"Wholesalers, storekeepers, warehousemen, railroads and truckers have received practically none of the increases," the bank declared after analyzing data taken from compilations of U. S. Bureau of Labor statistics.

"The income of the average non-farm family is estimated to be slightly more than $2,000 per year. Of that the family pays out almost one-fourth for foor. The present rising prices and the prospects of further increases are therefore of great importance to every family."

Continuing its monthly business review, Cleveland Trust said farmers in 1939 "received $126 from each family for the quantities of these foods that they supplied, and in 1941 they received $164 from each of them.

"If they continue to receive during the remainder of 1942 the amount paid to them by each family in January and February, they will receive $194 in 1942. It seems likely that the cost of food will continue to rise somewhat during this year and the amount paid to the farmers by each family will probably be more than $200, and it will constitute well over half of the retail price of the food."

War production is swelling, "and in a good many lines it can well be described as booming," the bank added. "The physical volume of industrial production is now about 50 per cent greater than it was at the peak of prosperity in 1929."

LAND OF THE FREE
—TO SERVE!

ON A THOUSAND fronts our women are enrolled in the task of winning the war.

Today Mrs. America is doing double duty! In every city, town and hamlet her busy fingers are knitting for the boys in Service. Her boundless energies are devoted to the Red Cross, the Nurse's Aid and countless other activities. Right now, as part of our Victory program, more women are working in factories than ever before.

For every housewife, whether she's stitching parachutes or doing war work at home, there still remains the all-important job of protecting her family's well-being at a time when the nation's high health standards and morale must be maintained.

So whatever her war efforts, she is still on the job in 30,000,000 kitchens providing for the health and happiness of her family!

In the dual role of wife and citizen, Mrs. America has a valuable ally in the House of Heinz and other makers of quality prepared foods. Since the famous 57 Varieties are ready to serve, they save time every day . . . lessen her work in the kitchen . . . provide more hours to give her country!

It is because American women are so free in their homes that they are able to serve their country so well today.

For there's spare time in every Heinz ready-to-serve food on the grocer's shelves today!

It would take hours to duplicate Heinz foods, that are ready to serve in a few minutes. In addition, preparation time is eliminated—fuel and shopping effort saved!

For instance, soup-making in the home takes an average of 4 hours. For many years, Heinz Soups have saved all but a few minutes of this time. Similarly, baked beans require a day and a half for preparation . . . but ever since Heinz Oven-Baked Beans were introduced, only heating before serving has been necessary. And Heinz Jellies and Relishes eliminate tedious days of household canning every year.

So Heinz foods are saving and will continue to save millions of kitchen hours for the women of America—precious hours that can be devoted to the needs of the nation!

Prepared in the small-batch, old-fashioned way, Heinz foods are ready to help you keep right on setting the finest table in the world. Heinz Tomato Ketchup, Chili Sauce and Tomato Juice are rich in the homespun flavors America has always loved. The same is true of Heinz Pickles, Relishes, Steamed Puddings and Jellies—Apple Butter and Peanut Butter. Heinz Baby Foods—like all the 57 Varieties—are made of the highest-quality ingredients the land affords.

And because we have been working constantly on the development of new methods, new products and new packages, women everywhere can continue to depend on us for many delicious, time-saving foods their families need and want!

For more than 73 years nourishing Heinz foods have graced the tables of America. Today they mean more than flavorful, nutritious eating. They also represent a ready source of the vital extra hours your country asks of you now.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—There appears to be no end to the lack of frankness and co-ordination among high government officials.

When the president presented the budget for fiscal 1943, he made it very clear that he wanted a tax program which would add $9,000,000,000, ($7,000,000,000 from general taxes and $2,000,000,000 from social security taxes.)

There was no ambiguity about the amounts involved. The budget tables were prepared on the assumption that collections would be larger by $9,000,000,000, and the deficit was calculated accordingly.

Gen. Johnson.

It is not unreasonable to assume that Secretary Morgenthau was informed, if not consulted, about the president's original program.

And what has Morgenthau proposed to the congress? He offered a tax bill which in a full year would yield the $7,000,000,000 required.

In 1942-43 it will surely yield less than that. Without the collection at source aspects it may yield as little as $4,500,000,000 and $5,000,000,000.

This might be an unimportant matter, were it not for the fact that it has been a practice of Morgenthau's in the past to underestimate our fiscal needs and fail to ask for enough taxes to meet them. Is he afraid that we can't "take" a larger tax program?

We can, Mr. Morgenthau. We are giving up more important things than our income. But we want to know what it is we are being asked to do.

I don't suppose that the secretary of the treasury is of the opinion that the situation has improved since January. It has not. If we needed nine billions of additional taxes then, we need at least that amount now.

As a matter of record the inflationary threat has increased considerably since January. Military expenditures are now running at an annual rate of $36,000,000,000. We are doing our best to increase them, and they are bound to increase from month to month.

As a consequence, prices are rising. Production of consumers good is being reduced drastically, and must be cut to the bone if we are to meet our military program.

But civilian buying is continuing at a high rate and stocks are being depleted. However, full the cupboards are they can't last indefinitely. The flow of income continues, while the flow to the cupboards has become a trickle.

Leon Henderson, who once was of the opinion that he could control prices without much additional taxation, has seen the handwriting on the wall.

He now thinks that the president's original tax goal is too low. He wants more than nine billions collected in taxes under a new tax program.

He is beginning to have those doubts, which some of us have expressed in the early stages of the discussion, about the effectiveness of selective price control. He is reported as considering wage and profit controls and the fixing of prices at retail.

The president, too, has stated that he is studying over-all methods of controlling inflation.

I could say, "I told you so," over this development, because it completely confirms my original opinion about the ineffectiveness of selective price control. I cite it here only to show that there is at last general agreement that consumers have too much money to spend.

Whether taxation alone is adequate to prevent inflation is not really relevant. If, as I believe, overall price control is essential, it still remains true that some method—whether taxation or compulsory saving, or some combination of the two—must be found to mop up the excess purchasing power.

I don't know what the right amount is, but it would be more accurate to say that it is closer to 25 billions than to nine billions.

Union Blames Navy for Plant Slowdown

POPULATION OF O. S. R. CUT BY WAR, BUSINESS

20 Per Cent Reduction Shown Here; Ohio Pen and London Prison Farm Down, Too.

The war and the accompanying upturn in business conditions have brought a sharp reduction in the population of the Mansfield reformatory and two other Ohio correctional institutions for men, state welfare department records showed today.

The decline has been greatest at the Mansfield reformatory where the number of inmates has dropped from 2,850 in 1940 to 2,258, a decline of 20 per cent. Smaller decreases were reported by the Ohio penitentiary and the London Prison farm.

Fewer paroled inmates are finding their way back to the institution because the draft and demand for war production workers have helped to break up their "old gangs" back home, William Mackey, Ohio parole officer, pointed out.

"Parole violators have fallen to as low a point as at any time in the past 10 to 15 years. There is a wonderful improvement in the parole situation," declared Mackey, whose job in the state welfare department is to see that those freed conditionally stick to the right path.

Department records show that Ohio penitentiary, London Prison farm and Mansfield reformatory populations have dropped steadily since the armed forces and industry began demanding more young men to prepare for and prosecute the war.

Here are the April population figures for three years:

	1940	1941	1942
Penitentiary	3,921	3,986	3,744
London Farm	1,796	1,752	1,744
Mans. Reform.	2,850	2,790	2,258

Mackey attributed the trend to three things:

1. Release of approximately 300 youthful first offenders from parole to go into the army.

2. Work opportunities so plentiful that all who are released can find jobs; and,

3. Courts generally suspending sentences when possible so men may go into army or war work.

Although the penitentiary and prison farm population decreases have not been so large as the reformatory's, a welfare department official said he expected both to drop noticeably this year as war work keeps more men busy and out of trouble.

An unusual kind of a party will be held "after hours" at the Mansfield Public library tonight. When the doors close at 9 p. m. the staff headed by Miss Lois MacKellar, librarian, will descend to the basement to sort and pack the recently accumulated volumes that have been donated to the Victory Book campaign. The "book party" is in line with a nation-wide observance of Victory book day, Friday, recently designated by President Roosevelt, and in which all Mansfielders and Richland countians are urged to participate.

Roy Vaughn, city councilman, bowler, and fisherman, was cooking hot dogs on the outdoor oven at Orphan Knoll last evening for members of the Charles Mill Sportsmen's club, when he pointed sadly to a large stretch of water, and said: "See that? That's my sunken garden." Vaughn had spent all day Sunday preparing a garden by the knoll, and planting sweet peas in carefully lined rows. Then the Charles Mill lake waters rose higher than they had even been known, and the garden disappeared.

Boys and girls in Mansfield and Richland county schools who have been busy in their spare time writing essays for the contest sponsored by the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association completed their work today and turned their essays into their teachers and principals. Nearly 275 young people asked for application blanks, showing they were interested in the contest, and most of them are expected to compete. Judging will begin immediately and cash prizes will be awarded to the winners. The papers deal with the conservation of wildlife in the county.

Even Richland county's Memorial Day services for the soldier dead will be affected this year by war priorities. The bronze grave markers and flag holders used annually by patriotic organizations will not be available because of priorities on metal, county commissioners have learned. A few of the markers were left over from last year, however, and will be distributed to representatives of the American Legion, G. A. R., and other organizations. The markers are available at the courthouse.

REPLIES TO CHARGE MADE BY SEN. BYRD

UMW Official Says Men Are Forced to Stay Idle as Plans Are Altered.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — CIO-United Automobile workers officials accused "navy brass hats" of slowing production at the Curtiss-Wright plant today and promised a formula for increasing output.

The union leaders charged Sen. Byrd (D., Va.), the Curtiss-Wright management and the navy department with "collaboration in a vicious attack on labor" and said they would turn over to federal authorities information on how to make a speedup effective.

Paul Miley, regional UAW director, sent telegrams to President Roosevelt, Donald Nelson, chairman of the war production board, and Secretary of the Navy Knox asking an investigation of plant conditions.

Nicholas Dragon, assistant chief of aviation for the UAW in Curtiss-Wrights plants, said "navy brass hats have made so many changes in the two planes that were being built that it was impossible for the corporation to meets its schedule." He contended workers had so little to do that me none shift tore down jigs set up by employes on the preceding shift.

The telegrams followed assertions in Washington by Byrd that the UAW was the cause of a slowdown here. Both Dragon and Miley described Byrd's statement, based—the senator said—on information from the navy department, as a "vicious lie."

Miley requested Nelson to meet with representatives of the UAW "who will place in your hands information that will increase production in this plant."

Curtiss-Wright executives declined comment on the navy report.

Byrd also quoted the navy as describing the "status" at the war-busy Shelmar Products company, Mt. Vernon, O., thus: "As a result of 90 per cent slowdown beginning April 6, company has had to close plant. Issue, wage increase."

Shelmar resumed operations last week after a two-day wage dispute shutdown. The company and unionists agreed to arbitration.

SOUTHERN OHIO PIPELINE SEEN

Ickes Announces Program That Would Swell Oil Supply For East.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—An eight inch oil pipeline probably will be built across southern Ohio under an emergency program soon to get under way, it was learned today.

The program, announced by Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold L. Ickes, contemplates relocation of more than 1,400 miles of pipeline to relieve acute oil shortages on the east coast.

Officials said complete details would not be available until an industrial engineering committee has completed its report a few days hence.

However, they said that Ohio, which they described as a pipeline "bottleneck," definitely would be affected.

The proposed new line through Ohio would run near Springfield, Columbus and Heath; would be aproximately 175 miles long, and serve areas not now reached by the Buckeye and Standard Oil of Ohio lines across the center of the state, it was said.

Purpose of this new line—which probably would have to be built with material "robbed" from less important lines—would be principally to increase oil movements into the east coast.

Another result of the program adopted by Ickes' and industry's representatives which will be felt in Ohio will be a large increase in oil barge movement up the Ohio river to Pittsburgh.

Threatens Legal Action Against Striking Pupils

BELLEVUE —(AP)— High school students striking against dismissal of a coach will have their names turned over to a truant officer for legal action if they fail to report to classes, Dr. H. K. Shumaker, school board president, said today.

Representatives of the students appeared before the school board last night to protest the reported dismissal of basketball Coach Stephen L. Lewis. They declared the strike was designed to gain attention for their protest.

The group requested formation of a student council to represent them in all matters.

"The school board is not on trial," Dr. Shumaker asserted. "We will not be stampeded into any action." He gave no assurance that the board would consider the matter further.

Lewis came here three years ago and won popularity with the students by turning out three successful basketball teams. The team won 32 games last season and went to the semi-finals in the class A district tournament.

FEDERATION HEARS TALK ON TROLLOPE

Mrs. Harold Andrews Tells About Writer Following Annual Business Meeting; Tea Served After Program.

WHEN the Federation of Women met at the Women's Club Tuesday afternoon, the business session was conducted by Mrs. Paul Bovard, president. Annual reports were given by the following: Miss Edith Martien, secretary; Mrs. Philip Corey, membership committee; Mrs. Fred L. Wolf, social chairman; Mrs. Elmer Post, welfare committee; Mrs. Anna Knote, dental clinic; Mrs. Scott Coffin, tea room committee, and Mrs. J. L. Stevens, house repair committee.

A short, explanatory talk on the nutrition course was given by Mrs. W. B. Ford, chairman of the Richland county chapter of the Nutrition Council. Federation members enrolled in the course following the meeting. First session will be held from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. on April 23 at the Women's Club. Meetings will be held at the same time and place every Thursday. Members are to make reservations for luncheon which will be served at the conclusion of the meetings.

Guest speaker yesterday afternoon was Mrs. Harold Andrews, member of the faculty of Ashland college. Her interesting subject was "An Industrious Chronicler," based on the life and work of Anthony Trollope. Mrs. Andrews opened her talk with a description of the writer's mother, Mrs. Frances Trollope, who came to Ohio via a Mississippi river steamer. Her home had been in England. Mrs. Trollope wrote about Cincinnati and Ohio in the early days. Her book was entitled, "Domestic Matters of Americans." In it she gave amusing, as well as critical descriptions of the Queen City and of Americans.

Mrs. Andrews' talk was centered on Trollope's "Barset Series," which includes the following novels: "The Warden," "Barchester Towers," "Framley Parsonage," "Doctor Thorne," and "Last Chronicles of Barset." Outstanding character in all of the novels, with the exception of "The Warden," was Mrs. Proudie, wife of the Bishop. Mrs. Andrews read excerpts from the books which familiarized the audience with the character, Mrs. Proudie.

The speaker pointed out that names of persons in Trollope's novels have very original and descriptive names. She also explained that some of the characters are so highlighted that they sometimes seem more like caricatures.

Mrs. Andrews described Trollope's autobiography, which was published by his son after the author's death, as "delightful reading." She said that, in a way, it is his best novel in spite of the fact that it really is not a novel. In his autobiography, Trollope told about his life simply and honestly. He got up at 5:30 o'clock every morning, had his coffee and did his literary work before he dressed. He believed that a conscientious writer should work at least three hours every day. He always read his copy at least twice before sending it to the printer. Trollope carefully measured time and output of his work.

Tea was served by Mrs. Bovard and Mrs. Coffin at a table centered with a lovely arrangement of pink and blue sweet peas and yellow daisies. Other bouquets graced the mantel and piano. On May 14 the federations will have a bridge party at the Women's Club. Mrs. Wolf will be chairman. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 16.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

Happy and propitious auguries are to be found in this day's astrological map, according to both lunar and mutual aspects. While business interests are under lively and productive incitements perhaps these may be overshadowed by personal, social, affectional, domestic or artistic engagements and activities. The young with their aims and progress are quite to the fore, whether in an intellectual, artistic or emotional expression. There may be surprising twists to the fortunes, with speculative enterprises or unlooked for benefits.

Those whose birthdav it is may anticipate a year of much progress, enterprise and expansion, with unusual opportunity for the young, ambitious and resourceful. This may reach far in diverse fields of endeavor, with success and satisfaction probably attaining surprising heights of expression and good fortune. There are certain speculative stimuli as well as a decided stabilizing force, excepting where public, group or community interests may be disappointing .

A child born on this day should have great intellectual or artistic talent, assuring professional, dramatic, literary or other creative ability.

WHAT CAN I DO?

DRESS UP! Says Designer

By DOROTHY ROE
Wide World Fashion Editor

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles on how women in the homes can help in this country's war effort.)

* * * * *

"They can't freeze style.

Those are the reassuring words of Fira Benenson, top-flight New York designer, who is in private life Countess Ilinski, wife of the Polish colonel, Janusz Ilinski. Though born in Poland, Miss Benenson's designing career is strictly American, and has blossomed only since the fall of Paris.

Miss Benenson, who combines an old-world elegance with ultra-modern efficiency, fits her fashions to the times. Right now the times and the War Production Board call for conservation of materials, simplicity of cut. These are no hardships to Fira Benenson.

"What fits our life is fashionable," she says. "A designer must reflect the life about her, if she is any good. She must sense instinctively what is right, what is needed."

Anticipating the conservation requests of the WPB, Miss Benenson's spring collection accents wearable clothes of simple cut, with slender lines, economy of fabric. There are many undyed jerseys and shantungs, and those indispensable navy blue tailleurs with crisp white touches.

Her advice to American women in wartime is:

"Dress up! Look your prettiest and most feminine. Don't give up the privileges of women—it's too nice to be one.

"If you must wear a uniform at your war job, take it off as soon as you are off duty, and go glamourous in a big way."

Miss Benenson knows whereof she speaks, for her husband, attached to the general staff of the Polish army, has gone through the Polish, Norwegian and French campaigns of World War II.

"When he comes home on leave, or brings some of his officer friends, I always dress to the teeth, and request my guests to do the same," says Miss Benenson. "Those men appreciate beauty, and flowers and candlelight. They say—'That's what we're fighting for!'"

FIRA BENESON. "Dress to the teeth . . ."

WPB OKAY. Simply styled undyed jersey, no zippers.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

THE SECONDS ticked themselves into eternity in what was to me a nerve-racking crawl, while old Professor Diswell studied the sheet of cryptograms I had brought to him, and the man he had called Charles sat still, with a tense anxiety.

"What makes you think these characters were made by Jack Bickett?" he croaked at last, raising his eyes from the paper and looking directly at me.

"I do not think. I know they were." I answered firmly. "Remember, Jack and I were raised together as brother and sister."

"But you told me you could make nothing of this," he said, "and I remember that when you used to come with Jack for his lessons, you couldn't fit the work in with your own, and soon dropped out. How can you be sure after so long a time? And you say you have not heard from him recently?"

"Not for a long time," I said with sudden despondency. "Neither his wife nor I have had any word from him for over a year." The old professor made no answer for almost a minute.

"Well, for that matter, neither have I," he said at last. "But then, I wouldn't expect to hear from him. I'm surprised he didn't write to his wife, however. Perhaps he did and his letters got lost."

Must Consult Books.

"I'm afraid you're talking too much," Charles said, and for a startled instant I thought he was questioning the old man's discretion.

The old man glanced oddly at him, almost, I thought, as if his first reaction to Charles' comment had been the same as mine.

"I fancy I am," he said after a long pause. "My lips and tongue still hurt when I speak."

"Couldn't you just answer in short words when I ask you questions?" I ventured. "My father is very anxious to find out about this."

"I don't know what it is, my self," Professor Diswell said slowly, "until I can get at my books."

My mental thermometer scurried to zero again.

"And your books are back in your house?" I asked.

He shook his head, with an expression reminding me irresistibly of the canary-eating cat legend.

"No, they are all with me in that big suitcase which Charles put into the trunk of the car," he answered, and I concluded that a package of the old man's cryptogram records must be the one Charles had taken from a hiding place, and which he had gloatingly told the man masquerading as Professor Diswell had been under his hand all the while.

An Invitation.

"Then if you only will consent to be our guests at the hotel which is our temporary home in New York, you will be able to discuss this matter with my father himself, and see for yourself exactly what he wants and why he wants it."

The old man pondered that for an interminable second.

"I'll have to think it over," he said. "What do you think," Charles? If those gangsters are going to be taken care of by the state troopers, wouldn't it be safe for us to go back to the house and stay?"

Charles looked at him oddly, as if uncertain how to answer, and suddenly the old man held out to him the sheet of cryptograms in Jack Bickett's handwriting which I had just given him.

"Perhaps, while you're making up your mind," he said with more than a tinge of acerbity in his manner, "you'd like to look at this."

THEATERS

All-Girl Revue.

The Platinum Blonds revue, an all-girl show of 36 entertainers topped by Edith Rogers Dahl at the head of a 10-piece band takes over the Ohio stage today for a two-day engagement. Mrs. Dahl, the blond beauty who saved her husband from Franco's firing squad in Spain, directs the orchestra that is reported on a par with the Spitalny aggregation. In addition to the orchestra that offers a brand of "hot swing" the revue includes a variety of other acts featuring dancers, novelty jugglers, instrumentalists and singers. The screen bill is topped by "The Night Before the Divorce," with Lynn Bari.

Virginia Drama.

Kathryn Grayson, who made her debut a year ago in a Hardy family picture, has the romantic feminine lead in "The Vanishing Virginian," showing at the Madison. Her role is unique in that she portrays the author of the biography from which the picture was filmed, Rebecca Yancey Williams of Richmond, Va. Filled with American traditions and centered about the hearthstone of a Virginia family, that might be any American family, the picture brings to life Cap'n Bob Yancey, a blustery, lovable character adored by his family. Frank Morgan plays Cap'n Bob and the cast includes Spring Byington as his wife and Miss Grayson as the daughter. "Bullet Scars," the second picture has Regis Toomey.

Hilarious Comedy.

The hilarious story of a father and mother trying to marry off an eligible daughter to the best interests of all concerned is told in "The Perfect Snob," the Ritz attraction featuring Charles Ruggles and Charlotte Greenwood as the parents. Lynn Bari plays the daughter and Anthony Quinn and Cornell Wilde, the suitors. "Tillie's Punctured Romance," with Charlie Chaplin and Marie Dressler and the short, "Ohio Soldiers In Review," complete the main bill.

Romantic Drama.

Glamorous Loretta Young appears as a renowned ballet dancer who uses hearts as stepping stones to success in her picture. "The Men In Her Life," at the Park. Conrad Veidt plays the kindly teacher who starts the girl on her road to fame while Dean Jagger is a determined American bent on showing the celebrity what true happiness can be. Otto Kruger and Eugenie Leontovich are in the cast. Dennis O'Keefe and Ruth Terry are co-featured in "Affairs of Jimmy Valentine," the second film.

"The Authority on Authorities"

FAVORING A SUIT CONTRACT

Whenever your partner has bid a No-Trump game and you have previously shown only one of two good suits, it is bad business to pass, unless he has made it perfectly clear that he has both of the other suits well stopped. Otherwise the opponents may run one of them against him. It is better in such a situation to show the other suit at the range of four, even if it is a minor.

	♠ K Q 10 9 ♥ K J ♦ J 10 7 5 ♣ Q 8 3
♠ 5 3 ♥ 9 8 6 2 ♦ 4 2 ♣ K 9 5 4 2	N W E S	♠ A J 8 7 2 ♥ 4 3 ♦ Q 8 ♣ A J 10 6
	♠ 6 4 ♥ A Q 10 7 5 ♦ A K 9 6 3 ♣ 7

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♠	Dbl	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 NT

East led the club J, which was won by the K, and West returned the 4 to the 8 and 10. The club A dropped the Q and the 6 was led to the 9. The 5 then set the contract one trick, and the spade A beat it another.

South should never have let his partner play that deal in a No Trump game without showing his diamond suit. He should have done that for two purposes, one positive and one negative. The negative one was the danger that something might occur just like what did happen. The positive reason was that bidding 4-Diamonds might possibly have been the key to a slam at one of the red suits, if North held a slightly different hand. As it turned out, 5-odd would have been easy at either suit.

South, of course, should not have doubled on his first turn, but should have bid either 2-Hearts or 3-Hearts, preferably the latter.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ 9 4 3 ♥ K J 6 4 ♦ K J 7 5 ♣ Q 5
♠ 8 6 ♥ 10 9 7 3 2 ♦ 8 2 ♣ 6 4 3 2	N W E S	♠ Q J 10 5 2 ♥ A ♦ 9 6 3 ♣ K 10 7
	♠ A K ♥ Q 8 5 ♦ A Q 10 4 ♣ A J 9 8

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

After East bids 1-Spade, South doubles, West passes and North calls 3-Hearts, what is South's logical action?

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

The football season opens tonight for Mansfield high's Tygers and this is not a misprint in spite of the fact that the year's at the spring and all.

The Tyger freshman squad goes to Galion this evening for a tilt with the Orange regulars, and tomorrow evening the Tyger regulars journey to Marion.

Both scrimmage sessions are booked for 4 p. m., and under the Ohio High School Athletic association rules governing spring play admission will be free.

* * *

Toledo Libbey is booked here for April 30, and a game at Toledo Waite, originally scheduled for next week, has been changed to May 2.

And once more the big game of the training season will be the Tyger-senior fracas winding up the schedule. They will be able to charge admission for that game.

Another tilt for the freshman squad may be booked with Madison, but arrangements haven't been completed yet.

Jack Zeller, the Johnny Appleseed halfback, won't see any action in the Galion game today. He's too swell-headed to play. That's right. Swell-headed in this case means mumps.

* * *

Al Fendrick, Madison high school coach, was well pleased with the showing his Rams made against Galion the other evening.

He admitted he was properly impressed by four touchdown passes his boys tossed at the Orangemen.

The Galion gridders were a cocky lot before the Madison scrimmage, Fendrick reports, being all full of that new spirit which came with a change in coaches.

Mansfield's seniors also are a cocky lot as they prepare for their game with Tygers. And they've got a right to be that way. It's been whispered about that they were a pretty fair football team last fall.

They've been hounding Coach Paul Snyder for some definite dope on the date of their game, but Snyder has been very cagy about the whole thing.

"I will let you know the day before the game,' he told the seniors, "so that you will have plenty of time to get in training."

Note to C-league keglers—It seems your league season is not over after all. Al Vogel tells me you have three more nights and nine more games in which to chuck the agate at the wood.

On the back of one of your score sheets coming into this office yesterday, someone had written: "That's all."

And since this is the time of season when "That's all" is very apt to mean "That's all," for a kegling league, I took it for granted the note meant what it said.

Gromek May Get Hill Call

Rookie Les Fleming Stars for Indians.

DETROIT—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians went after their second Tiger skin today, convinced yesterday's trophy needs a companion on the teepee wall.

Manager Lou Boudreau said he would like to use a rookie right-hander—Steve Gromek or Ray Poat. Previously Boudreau had named Al Milnar, who won 12 and lost 19 last season, but Al is a lefty and likely to run into trouble at Briggs stadium. Rangy, right-handed Paul (Dizzy) Trout, who pitched .500 ball in 18 games last year, was Detroit's choice.

Rookie Les Fleming lived up to pre-season hopes and was the Tribe's batting hero in yesterday's 5 to 2 victory, getting a single, a double and a home run in four trips to the plate. Kenny Keltner also hit for the circuit, swatting Al Benton's first pitch into the left field stands.

Jim Bagby started the season as auspiciously as Keltner by striking out Detroit's first batter, Jimmy Bloodworth. But the Tigers scored in the second on Pinky Higgins' double and Ned Harris' single, and again in the third on Fleming's error and Rudy York's single Successive doubles by Boudreau and Ray Mack in the fourth tied the game at 2-all.

Cleveland put the game on ice in the seventh. Gene Desautels singled, Bagby sacrificed, and Weatherly singled, scoring Desautels, then took second on Barney McCosky's throw to the plate. Rookie Oris Hockett singled Weatherly home.

In the eighth inning, Rookie Roy Henshaw, up from Jersey City, went to the mound for Detroit, and the first batter he faced was Fleming, up from Nashville. Fleming homered for his third safety of the day.

Red Jinxed In Openers

Drop Tenth in Last 11 Diamond Seasons.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Their 10th opening-day defeat in 11 years absorbed, the Cincinnati Reds today assigned Elmer Riddle to repay the Pittsburgh Pirates for a 4-2 setback before 34,104 cash customers.

Riddle, the National League's leading hurler last year, will oppose Lloyd Dietz of Dayton, Ky., a former Redleg.

A crowd that lacked only 836 persons of 1941's record opening day throng was thoroughly convinced by Max Butcher, big Pittsburgh righthander, that the Indian sign he had on Redleg batters last year weathered the winter.

* * *

Ival Goodman, the Reds' rejuvenated rightfielder, unloaded a triple in the fifth inning after two of Max's seven walks to score both Redleg runs. After that the Reds got only five singles.

Bucky Walters, in losing his first opening-day outing, was handicapped by two infield errors.

Eddie Joost booted Rookie John Barrett's hot grounder in the first inning with one away. There followed a double by Bob Elliott, Vince Dimaggio's long fly and a single by Elbie Fletcher for two runs.

* * *

In the fourth Bert Haas muffed Frankie Cusine's easy tap. Fletcher had bunted safely and Ed Stewart had singled, so the misplay filled the bases. Al Lopez then singled two runs in.

Ken Clouts First Home Run

Third Baseman Kenny Keltner of the Cleveland Indians is congratulated by Jeff Heath as he reaches home plate after clouting the first homer of the 1942 baseball season in Detroit where the Indians scalped the Tigers by a score of 5 to 2.

Total Crowds of 190,775 See Big League Openers

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Sports fans now have had their first taste of a tonic labelled "major league baseball, an antidote for war worries" and the dose given 190,775 persons in eight cities yesterday had an altogether agreeable flavor.

* * *

The opening games were crammed with enough excitement to satisfy any thrill-hunting baseball bug and they heralded more interesting encounters to come.

* * *

The world champion New York Yankees functioned like a well-geared machine Boston, Cleveland and St. Louis also looked good in winning and the Brooklyn Dodgers keynoted another topsy-turvy National league campaign with as dizzy a ball game as New York fans have seen in a long time.

At Washington, before Vice President Wallace and 31,000 other fans, old Charley (Red) Ruffing embarked on his 18th American league season by hurling a three-hit 7-0 shutout against the Senators.

Ruffing gave three singles and allowed only one walk and never let a man past first base. He accounted for two of New York's 10 bingles off young Sid Hudson and one of those knocked in two runs.

At New York 42,653 fans, the biggest turnout of the day, watched the Dodgers down the Giants, 7-5, in the Polo Grounds.

The National league champions stabbed old Carl Hubbell for four runs in the first inning and belted him out of the box with Peewee Reese's two run homer in the fourth.

The St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds, chief rivals of the Dodgers, lost their debuts.

The Chicago Cubs nosed out the Cards, 5-4, by bunching two runs in the first inning and three more in the sixth off Mort Cooper. Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Bruins also earned the distinction of being the first pilot thumbed out of a game by an umpire.

* * *

The Reds were set down, 4-2, by the Pittsburgh Pirates as big Max Butcher outpitched Bucky Walters, six hits to seven.

Johnny Cooney, the 41-year-old handyman of the Boston Braves, took over first base and provided a timely single and double to help beat the Phils, 2-1.

Ted Williams, the batting hero of last season with a .406 average, opened this campaign with a three-run homer on his first trip to the plate and also collected two singles. He knocked home five runs as the Boston Red Sox overpowered the Philadelphia Athletics, 8 to 3

The Cleveland Indians let loose a war whoop calculated to chill some of their rivals for the American league's first division as they trounced the Detroit Tigers, 5-2.

The St. Louis Browns made an early bid for recognition by chopping down the Chicago White Sox, 3-0, in the day's tightest hurling duel. Bob Muncrief held the White Sox to three hits, gave no walks, let no one get past first and faced only 28 men. John Rigney rationed the Browns to five safeties and kept the score to 1-0 till the ninth.

Today and tomorrow the clubs will remain at their opening day stands, but Friday the teams which now are on the road will get their chance to bow before the home fans.

Sportsmen Seek Members

Charles Mill Group Elects New Officers.

An enthusiastic group of Charles Mill Sportsmen launched a membership drive last night, planned to triple their numbers and increase their enjoyment of the sportsmen's paradise which is the Charles Mill section of the Muskingum conservancy chain.

* * *

Each of the members present for the hot dog feast on the lawn of Orphan Knoll last evening pledged himself to sell a self-imposed quota of memberships in the organization. Earl Pollock led the list, taking 15 membership cards, while most of the sportsmen pledged themselves to sell in the neighborhood of half a dozen cards.

New officers were elected last night, with Jim Burkhardt succeeding Carl Brehmer as president. Glenn Macey was named vice president, and Leo Yuncker was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Membership, publicity and other committees were appointed.

The Charles Mill group adopted two resolutions recently passed by the Richland County Conservation advisory board One urges that boating operations be continued at Pleasant Hill under the same conditions as in 1941, while the other asks that the north end of Charles Mill lake be opened for duck hunting next fall.

The sportsmen's association authorized President Burkhardt to spend $50 for materials to be used in building pens for raising of pheasants, later to be freed in the district.

Ohio Fighters Win at Boston

32 Amateurs Remain In National Tourney.

BOSTON —(AP)— The 32 more or less battered survivors of the first two rounds of the National A. A. U. boxing championship tournament today received a 48-hours' respite from their title quests for the first time in the competition's long history.

The victors, representing 17 sectional associations, go again in semi-final contests Friday night, when eight new champions will be crowned.

* * *

The tourney's only defending titlist, Jimmy Mulligan of Lowell Mass., dropped a decision to Ursal Snapp, Pocatello, Idaho, middleweight.

Mulligan's unexpected downfall turned the 160-pound division into a wide-open affair among Walter Jones of Cincinnati, Private Merrill Campbell of Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and Samson Powell of Cleveland.

Corporal Bill Jachman of Camp Polk, La., a native of Appleton, Wis., stamped himself as the tourney's outstanding competitor with a hard-earned win over Richard Letts of Wilberforce, O., in the heavyweight division.

How other Ohio entrants fared: Quarter-finals:

112 pounds—Willie Marshall, Columbus, defeated Joe Herbert, Lowell; Leroy Jackson, Cleveland, defeated Nick Sanders, St. Louis.

126 pounds — Sam Derrico, Cleveland, defeated Pete Cilinski, Washington; James Marlo, Albany, defeated James Yee, Cincinnati.

135 pounds—Charles O'Kelly, St. Louis, defeated Harold Jardine, Salt Lake City; Willard Buckless, Saugus, defeated Tom Bell, Wilberforce.

160 pounds—Samson Powell, Cleveland, defeated Alex Gibbons, Albany; Walter Jones, Cincinnati, defeated Loville Perkins, New Orleans.

Heavyweight — Paul Komar, Pittsburgh, knocked out William Urbancic, Cleveland, second round

Query Quits Shelby Post

Resigns as Coach of High School Teams.

SHELBY—William Query has resigned as head athletic coach at Shelby high school, Supt. C. G. Keck announced today.

Query came to Shelby six years ago from Urichsville, O. During the time he was here he developed two co-championship North Central Ohio league football teams and his grid teams placed high in the league in other seasons. The basketball teams during the six years, lost more than a majority of their games. Shelby tied Galion in 1938 and Marion and Bucyrus in 1940 for the NCO football championship.

A graduate of Ashland college, Coach Query said today that he did not have any future plans as yet. Because of an eye ailment, he may not continue in the coaching field.

* * *

Query with his twin brother, David of Willard high school, were Ohio's only twin brother high school coaches.

Association Has 4 New Managers

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Four new managers make their debut in the American association Thursday as the AA Baseball league pries the lid off its 41st season.

Eddie Dyer, fresh from Houston, will pilot the Columbus Red Birds as they swing into action at Indianapolis. Dyer replaced Burt Shotton, now coach of the American League Cleveland Indians, who guided the Red Birds to the 1941 championship.

Indianapolis also has a new skipper in Gabby Hartnett, late of the New York Giants, who took over for Wade Killefer.

* * *

Johnny Neun, erstwhile manager at Newark, has traded places with Bell Meyer and will handle the reins at Kansas City, where the Blues entertain Minneapolis in the get-away game.

The other new pilot is Harry "Truck" Hannah, from Memphis, who replaced Ralph "Red" Kress at St. Paul. The Saints, ignored by most of the scribes in pre-season forecasts, open at Milwaukee.

Charley Grimm finished the 1941 season with the Brewers and thus might be regarded as a semi-new manager. The same goes for Fred Haney who took over at Toledo in mid-season, except that Haney led the Mud Hens during the 1935-38 period.

Toledo opens at Louisville where Bill Burwell again directs operations. The only other all-season holdover from 1941 is Tom Sheehan at Minneapolis.

FINALLY DEFEATED

TOLEDO —(AP)— The 16-year track reign of Scott high school, which had won 64 consecutive dual city league meets, ended yesterday when Devilbiss high won, 73 to 44.

BATTLE TO DRAW

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—(AP)—Sonny Horne, 153¼, Niles, O., and Danny Rosati, also 153¼, Newark, battled to a draw in the White Plains community center ring last night.

Cleveland Gets All-Star Game

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Picked squads of the American and National leagues will meet in an all-star baseball game to aid the armed forces at Cleveland's municipal stadium the night of July 7, it was learned today.

The game will follow a similar all-star game to be played at Ebbett's Field, Brooklyn, on July 6.

Proceeds of the games will go to the ball-and-bat fund of the nation's armed forces. Sale of war bonds and stamps will be promoted.

Details of the games are to be worked out today at a conference in New York of league officials and baseball commissioner, K. M. Landis.

Court Decides

IN FAVOR OF

Royal Crown Cola

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

DISMISSED!

▶ That was the Court's answer, just a few days ago, to each and every charge made against Royal Crown Cola by our largest competitor, who claimed the sole right to use the word "cola" as part of the name of a drink.

The Court recognized that cola has been used in various ways for many generations, and that the word "cola" is the generic term for a type of beverages known as "cola drinks," of which there are many.

For 35 years, we have been making cola drinks. In 1934 we introduced Royal Crown Cola in a bottle that gave not one, but two full glasses for 5¢. Folks liked getting more for their money.

And even more important—people said it was the best-tasting cola. Impartial group taste-tests of the nation's best-known colas have been continuously conducted throughout the country. Royal Crown Cola has won 5 out of 6 of these tests.

ROYAL CROWN COLA IS TRULY "BEST BY TASTE-TEST."

To you, the Court's decision means you can continue to buy whichever cola your taste prefers and, if you choose, you can get not one, but two full glasses for your nickel.

To us, the decision means adjudication of our fair dealing, clean competition, and the fact that Royal Crown Cola is sold on merit alone.

QUALITY THAT'S "BEST BY TASTE-TEST"!

▶ The highest grades of sugar are required in making Royal Crown Cola. Our Government has found it necessary to control the distribution and use of sugar. With this and all other conservation measures we are happy to cooperate.

AND WE PROMISE TO KEEP THE QUALITY OF ROYAL CROWN COLA "BEST BY TASTE-TEST."

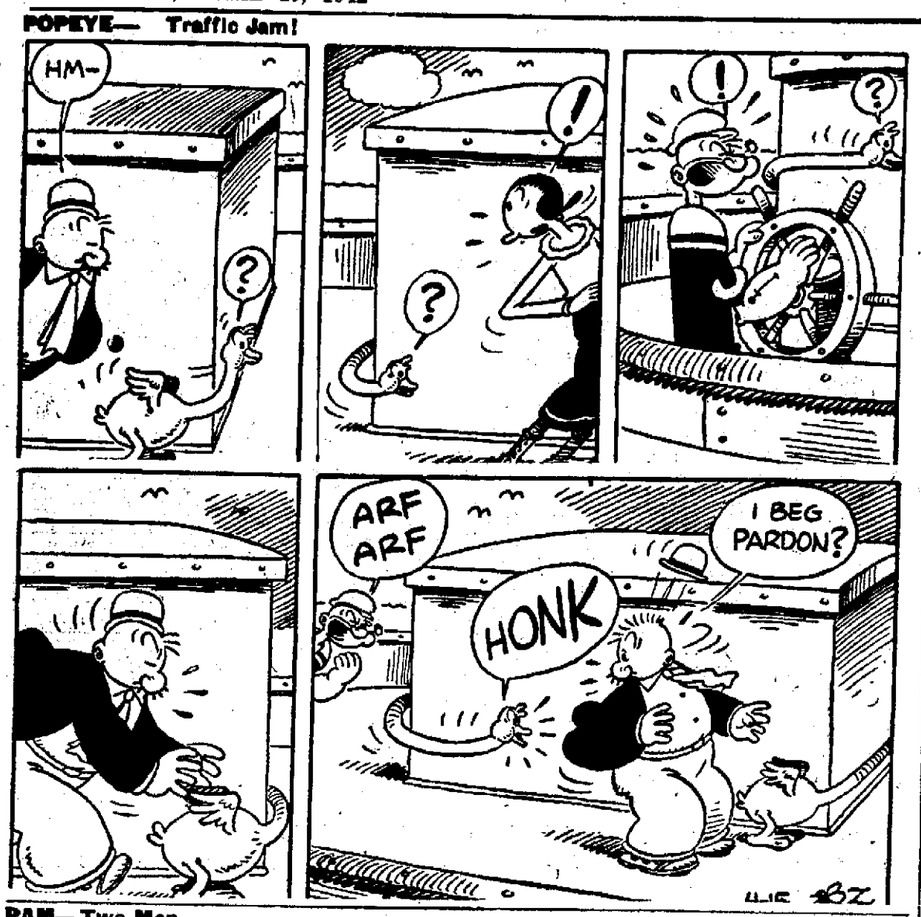
POPEYE— Traffic Jam!



PAM—Two Men. By A. W. Brewerton

YEH--HE RUINED ME--WRECKED MY LIFE! HE'S TO BLAME -- AND I'M GOING TO GET HIM!
BUT I'VE GOT T'GO SLOW, GET MY BEARINGS--FIND OUT HOW MANY HE'S GOT AROUND HIM! MUSTN'T LET CLIFF SEE ME HANGING AROUND!
NO! MIGHT GET HIM SCARED!
I'LL DISGUISE MYSELF! SOME GLASSES--A FALSE MUSTACHE YEH--THAT WILL DO IT!
I'M GONNA GET YOU, CLIFF CAREY, I'M GOING TO GET YOU!
I'D LIKE TO HUNT CARSON UP--SEE IF I COULD HELP HIM IN ANY WAY--FOR THE SAKE OF THE HAPPY DAYS WHEN WE WERE KIDS TOGETHER! BUT I'M AFRAID HE MIGHT RESENT IT!

STOCK MARKET TAKES SLIGHT PRICE DECLINE

Power Consumption Reported Slightly Off, But Still Higher Than '41.

NEW YORK—Prices ruled a little lower on the stock exchange today, after the sharp retreats of Tuesday.

Unchanged or down a bit were such issues as American Telephone, Chrysler, General Motors and Sears Roebuck. J. I. Case lost a point in light dealings.

The Edison Electric Institute reported a slight decrease in power output for the week ended April 11 but the total continued to show substantial improvement over 1941. Kilowatt hour production amounted to 3,320,858,000 against 3,348,608,000 in the preceding week and 2,905,581,000 in the comparable period of 1941.

The increase over a year ago on the Pacific coast again was larger than in other areas, indicating industrial and war activity in that region continued at a fast pace. The jump over 1941 was 26.4 per cent compared with 18.6 per cent for the southern states which made the next best showing.

ILLNESS FATAL TO GEN. JOHNSON

Noted Columnist Who Headed NRA Dies Early Today In Washington.

bourne, a lieutenant colonel in the army, were at the bedside.

Since 1934, after disagreeing with New Deal policies and after the death of NRA, Johnson has written his daily newspaper column. His caustic and often salty remarks have generally been critical of the administration, and in recent years, critical of the administration's foreign policy.

His most recent "run-in" with his former chief, President Roosevelt, came in April, 1941, When Johnson, a former army officer who wrote the World war I draft bill and served as judge advocate to Gen. John J. Pershing during the war, applied to the president for renewal of his commission.

President Roosevelt denied the request on the ground that Johnson was not physically fit for active service.

Johnson, in his many years of work in Washington, established a reputation as a gruff, hard-boiled administrator who carried over into his later years many of the characteristics acquired during his long army service. He had many nicknames, probably the most famous of which was "Iron Pants."

His remarks about NRA administration always were liberally sprinkled with such words as "bunk," "hooey," "gypped," and "chiselers."

His rise to national prominence came during the first World war when he was assigned to write the first compulsory draft law.

After the war Johnson became executive vice chairman of the Moline Plow company.

Johnson's selection to head the NRA—the New Deal's first experiment in 1933 in its drive to light the depression—was not a surprise. Mr. Roosevelt knew him well and had had Johnson help him with some of his speeches during the 1932 campaign.

The days that followed Johnson's appointment as head of the NRA were hectic ones in Washington.

He received the high government officials and the high industry leaders alike in his shirt sleeves and dished out ultimatums to both.

He became a national hero overnight and went into eclipse almost as soon after the supreme court decided that the National Recovery Administration act was unconstitutional.

Johnson was born in Fort Scott, Kans., in 1882.

During the San Francisco earthquake disaster of 1906 Johnson served as quartermaster for refugees.

When he resigned from military service in 1919 Johnson was a brigadier general, the youngest man to attain that rank since the Civil war. He had seen active service in the Philippines and in Mexico, and during the World war was judge advocate to General Pershing.

M'ARTHUR FACES POWER PROBLEM

Uncertainty on Jurisdiction Slows Up General in Plan of Offense.

of MacArthur's powers and territory were linked with more far-reaching questions.

There has been a general impression here that MacArthur would not start a mass offensive until he was assured of sufficient supplies to make a thorough job of it, and start rolling the Japanese inexorably from the southwest Pacific toward Japan.

Though there had been plain intimations that MacArthur had been unable to announce his command because of uncertainty regarding his powers and jurisdiction, the army spokesman's statement that he was as yet only in charge of American forces was received with amazement.

Prime Minister Curtin announced that so far as Australia was concerned MacArthur was in supreme command of Allied army, navy and air forces in this area.
